

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book is the outcome of a research project on the relationship between research in the social sciences and secessionist movements, sponsored by the Vlaamse Gemeenschap, Administratie Wetenschap en Innovatie (Flemish Community, Science and Innovation Administration) and the Onderzoeksraad of the Vrije Universiteit Brussel (Research Council of the Free University Brussels). In writing this book, my first debt is to Bruno Coppieters, with whom I cooperated on this research project, and whose careful and constructive criticism constantly obliged me to maintain high standards of scholarship.

Many scholars have been of great help with their supportive comments on conference papers and articles related to this book, and on various versions of the manuscript: Gianfranco Bottazzi, Kris Deschouwer, Marc Hooghe, Tom Nairn, Ronald Rudin, Richard Sakwa, Anne Sassoon, Dietlind Stolle, Patrick Stouthuysen, Patricia Van den Eeckhout, Louis Vos, Michael Waller, and the anonymous reviewer from Berghahn. Andrea Battistini and Marco Martiniello encouraged me to propose the manuscript for publication. A special thanks to Veronica Kelly, for her careful and thorough language corrections.

I would also like to express my gratitude to the scholars and friends in Italy who have been of help during my research, amongst whom I would like to mention Radhouan Ben Amara and Paola Boi, Michele and Yvonne Brondino, Francesca Fabi, Peter Gardner and Cinzia Abbate, Rita Monticelli, Gaetano Schiavo and Maria Rosaria De Bueriis. I would also like to thank the many Italian scholars who have expressed their appreciation of the Italian edition of this volume (Modernità e secessione. Le scienze sociali e il discorso politico della Lega Nord, Rome, Carocci, 2004). Their comments and suggestions have been helpful in the final editing of the present English version of the book.

Throughout these years my family – and especially my parents Paul and Hilda Huysseune, and Martine Huysseune and André Vervloesem – have been a constant support, and they should therefore share in this expression of gratitude. By giving me unfailing moral support, and by her high standards of scholarship and professional responsibility, Maria Giulia has, more than anyone else, enabled me to finish this book, and my special thanks therefore go to her.
