

Acknowledgments

The contributions of many individuals went into the creation of this volume. I would like to express my thanks to the seventeen chapter authors for their hard work and patience, and especially for their tolerance for my many editorial interventions. Thanks here also go to Robert Paine, who helped make it possible to include Lisa Gilad's chapter posthumously.

The Fifth International Research and Advisory Panel Conference on Forced Migration (9–12 April 1996) in El Doret, Kenya, brought together a number of those whose chapters are now found here. I am therefore grateful to the conference organizers, Khalid Koser and Lois van Willigen, and to the conference hosts, Monica Kathina and others at the Centre for Refugee Studies, Moi University. The conference was financially supported by the UNHCR, the Dutch Ministry of the Interior, and the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation. Material assistance was provided by Stichting Pharos, Moi University, the Refugee Studies Programme at the University of Oxford, the University of Sussex, and the University of Utrecht. Thereafter, Richard Black, Barbara Harrell-Bond, Eftihia Voutira, and Helene Moussa provided important support and encouragement in the formative days of this project.

At the University of Lethbridge, I am particularly indebted to Norman Buchignani for discussing with me every aspect of the volume's development, for helping editorially, and for the emotional labor he contributed to the completion of this work. This volume is much stronger because of him. I would like to express my gratitude to Connie Donoghue and Marlene Hollwey for their insightful comments, humor, and sheer endurance in assisting in editing and word-processing in the late stages of the project. I would also like to acknowledge Dean Bhagwan Dua for his continuing support of my work.

I am very grateful for the support of Berghahn Books. Marion Berghahn must have been dismayed by the initial size of the manuscript, yet along with Janine Treves generously encouraged my efforts throughout. Shawn Kendrick did a masterful job of final copy editing and the value of her contribution cannot be overestimated.

I would like to acknowledge the UNHCR for their permission to use photographs from their journal, Refugee. Thanks also go to the Life and Peace Institute, Upsalla, for permission to develop Carolyn Nordstrom's chapter out of their 1997 report, Girls and War Zones.

My own research was financially supported by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SSHRC) of Canada under its standard grants program (#42154) and through its funding of the international Women in Conflict Zones network, and by the University of Lethbridge Research Fund.
