

Contents

List of Tables	vii
List of Figures	viii
Preface by Thomas Csordas	ix
List of Contributors	xii
Chapter 1 Introduction: Body and Self in Medical Pluralism Helle Johannessen	1
Part I Body, Self and Sociality
Chapter 2 Demographic Background and Health Status of Users of Alternative Medicine: A Hungarian Example László Buda, Kinga Lampek and Tamás Tabin	21
Chapter 3 Táltos Healers, Neoshamans and Multiple Medical Realities in Postsocialist Hungary Imre Lázár	35
Chapter 4 ‘The Double Face of Subjectivity’: A Case Study in a Psychiatric Hospital (Ghana) Kristine Krause	54
Chapter 5 German Medical Doctors’ Motives for Practising Homoeopathy, Acupuncture or Ayurveda Robert Frank and Gunnar Stollberg	72
Chapter 6 Pluralisms of Provision, Use and Ideology: Homoeopathy in South London Christine A. Barry	89
Chapter 7 Re-examining the Medicalisation Process Efrossyni Delmouzou	105

Part II Body, Self and the Experience of Healing

Chapter 8	Healing and the Mind-body Complex: Childbirth and Medical Pluralism in South Asia Geoffrey Samuel	121
Chapter 9	Self, Soul and Intravenous Infusion: Medical Pluralism and the Concept of samay among the Naporuna in Ecuador Michael Knipper	136
Chapter 10	Experiences of Illness and Self: Tamil Refugees in Norway Seeking Medical Advice Anne Sigfrid Grønseth	148
Chapter 11	The War of the Spiders: Constructing Mental Illnesses in the Multicultural Communities of the Highlands of Chiapas Witold Jacorzynski	163
Chapter 12	Epilogue: Multiple Medical Realities: Reflections from Medical Anthropology Imre Lázár and Helle Johannessen	183
Index		199