Non-Humans in Amerindian South America
Ethnographies of Indigenous Cosmologies, Rituals and Songs
Edited by Juan Javier Rivera Andía

Drawing on fieldwork from diverse Amerindian societies, and presenting ethnographies of non-human entities emerging in ritual, oral tradition, cosmology, shamanism and music, this book offers new insights into the indigenous constitutions of humanity, personhood, and environment characteristic of the South American highlands and lowlands.

Economy, Crime, and Wrong in a Neoliberal Era
Edited by James G. Carrier

“Truly outstanding in every respect… [the volume] shows that anthropologists can productively complicate our view of contemporary issues whilst simultaneously advancing our understanding of what is going on in our world in a very revealing and ethnographically grounded way.”
- John Gledhill, University of Manchester

This volume examines the relationship between corporate and economic wrong-doing and the neoliberal policies and practices that have been influential in Western societies since around 1980, considering whether neoliberalism has affected the likelihood that people and firms will act in ways that many would consider wrong – and even fragmented our very ideas of economic right and wrong.

Being-Here
Placemaking in a World of Movement
Annika Lems

“As an essay in phenomenological anthropology, this is groundbreaking work. As an empirically-grounded contribution to an existential anthropology of minor modes of being, it may be second to none.”
- Michael D. Jackson, Harvard University

By exploring the lifeworlds of two middle-aged Somalis living in Melbourne, Australia, Being-Here sheds light on the existential dynamics of being-in-place.

Experimental Collaborations
Ethnography through Fieldwork Devices
Edited by Adolfo Estalella and Tomás Sánchez Criado
Foreword by George E. Marcus
Afterword by Sarah Pink

“It will be of relevance to all practicing anthropologists, regardless of their subdiscipline, area of geographical interest, or current career position.”
- David O’Kane, Max Planck Institute for Social Anthropology, Halle/Saale, Germany

Grounded in a series of diverse ethnographic projects in Africa, America and Europe, Experimental Collaborations attempts to expand our ethnographic repertoire of fieldwork devices. The titular concept signals a descriptive account of certain forms of ethnographic engagement, and a research and pedagogic program to intervene in current forms of ethnographic practice and learning.

Back to the Postindustrial Future
An Ethnography of Germany’s Fastest-Shrinking City
Felix Ringel

“Accessible and stimulating... There is little that I know of in our current literature that describes a present-moment European urban community in this ethnographic detail.” · Jane Guyer, Johns Hopkins University

Back to the Postindustrial Future is the first comprehensive ethnography of the future, approaching Hoyerswerda, Germany’s fastest shrinking city, not from the perspective of its past, but persistently from that of its future.

Messy Europe
Crisis, Race, and Nation-State in a Postcolonial World
Edited by Kristín Loftsdóttir, Andrea L. Smith, and Brigitte Hipfl

“An impressive study on a very timely topic.” · Jeremy MacClancy, Oxford Brookes University

Messy Europe links theoretical insights to current discussions of crisis – economic and otherwise – showing how these shape the creation of subjectivities and identities.

Managing Ambiguity
How Clientelism, Citizenship, and Power Shape Personhood in Bosnia and Herzegovina
Ćarna Brković

“Brković’s book is one of those that adds another piece to the puzzle that recent anthropological research on Bosnia-Herzegovina is creating... But here let me add that Managing Ambiguity is an essential piece to the puzzle since it deals with the topic not easy to research, to understand, and to present.” · Anthropology Notebooks

Why do people turn to personal connections to get things done? Challenging widespread views of favors as means of survival in transitioning contexts, this volume demonstrates that these contemporary globalized forms of flexible governance are not contradictory to one another, but often mutually constitutive.

The Good Holiday
Development, Tourism and the Politics of Benevolence in Mozambique
João Afonso Baptista

“This book makes an important contribution to critical studies of tourism, and the growing corpus on Mozambican Studies as well as – and this is perhaps its most important contribution – adding significantly to analyses of consumerism and its ethical, economic and political dimensions.” · Bjørn Engen Bertelsen, University of Bergen

Drawing on ethnographic research in the village of Canhane, host to the first community tourism project in Mozambique, this volume explores the influence of development and tourism in relation to ethics, and non-state governance in contemporary life.

Moving Places
Relations, Return and Belonging
Edited by Nataša Gregorić Bon and Jaka Repič

“This is a well conceived and well executed volume that addresses an important and timely constellation of themes regarding movement, (im)mobilities, dislocations, reorientations, return, and memory in a range of compelling sociocultural contexts.” · Peter Kirby, University of Oxford

Centering on “moving places” – places with locations that are not fixed, but relative – this book draws together contributions from Europe, Latin America, Asia, and Africa, exploring practices and experiences of movement, non-movement, and place-making.

Figuration Work
Student Participation, Democracy and University Reform in a Global Knowledge Economy
Gritt B. Nielsen

“Figuration Work encourages those committed to researching university cultures to suggest new envisioned futures and make some seductive intellectual stabs at the ‘not-yet-thought-of university’.” · Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute

What should the role of students be in shaping their education, their university, and the wider society? This book seeks to answer these questions following recent international educational reforms.

Contemporary Pagan and Native Faith Movements in Europe
Colonialist and Nationalist Impulses
Edited by Kathryn Rountree

“Students and scholars of the sociology or anthropology of religion and pagan studies will no doubt find this book a useful tool, as it is one of the first complete volumes to explore paganisms in Europe and the complexities and influences of global and local politics, culture, and social change on these emerging movements.” · Anthropos

Contributors to this volume draw on ethnographic cases within Europe to explore the interplay of nationalism and transnationalism within these recently emerging and diverse groups.

Flexible Capitalism
Exchange and Ambiguity at Work
Edited by Jens Kjaerulff
Afterword by Keir Martin

“This volume comprises a series of insightful essays that apply existing debates in anthropology . . . to new empirical contexts of work under flexible capitalism.” · Geert De Neve, University of Sussex

Introducing anthropological exchange theory to a wider readership, this volume explores sociality in work environments marked by the kind of structural changes that have come to define contemporary “flexible” capitalism.

Being a State and States of Being in Highland Georgia
Florian Mühlfried

“This is essential reading for scholars of the Caucasus as well as those interested in Soviet and post-Soviet citizenship. Mühlfried’s discussion of religiosity as forming a ‘spiritual border’ entwined with the state is compelling and worth pursuing in future studies.” · American Ethnologist

Taking a fresh look at the Georgian highlands allows the author to consider perennial questions of citizenship, belonging, and mobility in a context that has otherwise been known only for its folkloric dimensions.

Being Human, Being Migrant
Senses of Self and Well-Being
Edited by Anne Sigfrid Grønseth
Epilogue by Nigel Rapport

“This is a comprehensive collection – addressing mind and body. The ethnography is of a very high quality, and the collection is beautifully edited by Sigfrid Grønseth…” · Journal of Population Ageing

Focusing on memories, nostalgia, the here-and-now social experiences of daily living, and the hopes and dreams for the future, the volume demonstrates how all interact in migrants’ and refugees’ experience of identity and quest for well-being.

Peripheral Vision
Politics, Technology, and Surveillance
Catarina Frois

“This is a valuable contribution to the field of surveillance studies, in that it broadens the perspective of many aspects of research on surveillance through political anthropology.” · Nils Zurawski, Hamburg University

In Portugal between 2005 and 2010, “modernization through technology” was the major political motto used to develop and improve the country’s peripheral and backward condition. This study reflects on one of the resulting, specific aspects of this trend—the implementation of public video surveillance.
