DYNAMICS OF MEMORY AND IDENTITY IN CONTEMPORARY EUROPE
Edited by Eric Langenbacher, Bill Niven and Ruth Wittlinger

“This is a very interesting and well-researched contribution to the memory studies literature. The individual chapters are based on sophisticated research and provide up-to-date insight into the debates in their fields of specialization. Especially impressive is that, across the board, they draw on literatures and source materials in the languages of interest, so that the volume brings together a new set of materials for an English-speaking audience.”

Jenny Wüstenberg, Berlin Program for Advanced German and European Studies, Free University of Berlin

In recent years, the Europeanization of Holocaust memory and a growing sense of the need to stage a more “self-critical” memory has significantly changed the way in which western Europe commemorates and memorializes the past. The increasing dissatisfaction among scholars with the blanket, undifferentiated use of the term “collective memory” is evolving in new directions. This volume brings the tension into focus while addressing the state of memory theory itself.

Eric Langenbacher is a Visiting Assistant Professor and Director of Honors and Special Programs in the Department of Government, Georgetown University. Bill Niven is Professor of Contemporary German History at Nottingham Trent University. Ruth Wittlinger is a Senior Lecturer in the School of Government and International Affairs at the University of Durham, UK.

THE POLITICS OF EUROPEAN CITIZENSHIP
Deepening Contradictions in Social Rights and Migration Policy
Peo Hansen and Sandy Brian Hager

With a New Afterword to the Paperback Edition

“Hansen and Hager’s crucial contribution lies in the empirically well-founded revelation of the ways in which history and politics continue to matter in EU policy-making... The Politics of European Citizenship therefore constitutes a key resource for everyone aiming to systematically unpick some of the key policy tensions of European integration project; more than that, it is an extremely well and entertainingly written account of a highly complex and contradictory policy terrain.”
Journal of Social Policy Review

“Hansen and Hager’s work... is distinctive in its approach, with its uniqueness stemming from the critical historical approach it takes, (it) ought to be compulsory reading for all those who are interested in citizenship issues within the European context.”
Journal of European Social Policy

Peo Hansen is Political Scientist and Associate Professor at the Institute for Research on Migration, Ethnicity and Society (REMESO) at Linköping University, Sweden. Sandy Brian Hager is a PhD candidate in the Department of Political Science at York University, Toronto.

EUROPEAN FOUNDATIONS OF THE WELFARE STATE
Franz-Xaver Kaufmann
Translated from the German by John Veit-Wilson
Foreword by Anthony B. Atkinson, Nuffield College, University of Oxford

“This book renders accessible a rich set of essays on the past and future development of the welfare state in Europe... and is essential reading.” from the Foreword

“The author belongs to a handful of leading German sociologists. While his international reputation is undisputed, much of his work is not available in English. This collection is an excellent introduction to his work that combines systematic and historical approaches, is highly theoretical (also with respect to the history of social theory), but at the same time based on a profound knowledge of empirical material.”
Jürgen Kocka, Zentrum für Zeitgeschichte, Forschung Potsdam

“An exceptional reprise of the welfare state experience, the author’s sociological approach provides the means for gauging the adequacy of social policy over time and offering projections about the future... Highly recommended!” Choice

Franz-Xaver Kaufmann is Emeritus Professor of Social Policy and Sociology at the University of Bielefeld.

THE LIMITS OF ATLANTICISM
Perceptions of State, Nation, and Religion in Europe and the United States
Gret Haller
Translated from the German by Alan Nothnagle

“...Historically solid, intellectually brilliant, and free of Eurocentric tendencies.” Neue Westfälische Zeitung

Working as Ombudsperson for Human Rights in the State of Bosnia and Herzegovina in Sarajevo, Gret Haller became aware that the reactions of the United States and Europe are hardly ever the same, be it in Bosnia or in other parts of the world, with the current crisis in the Middle East offering just another example: in international negotiations it is always the United States that refuses to give up sovereignty. While Europeans view sharing as an instrument to guarantee freedom and peace, Washington sees it as a threat to its independence and power. Instead, the U.S. government relies on unsanctioned campaigns against rogue states. The author is not optimistic that the recent shift in the political climate in the U.S. will change this deeply ingrained attitude. In her book, based on in-depth and first-hand experience in the transatlantic political arena, the author concludes that any fresh approach towards addressing these differences will first require an understanding of their roots in history.

Gret Haller has worked as a member of the municipal government of Bern, as ambassador of Switzerland to the Council of Europe in Strasbourg, and was elected by the OSCE to the post of Ombudsperson for Human Rights in the State of Bosnia and Herzegovina in Sarajevo.

BETWEEN YESTERDAY AND TOMORROW
German Visions of Europe, 1926-1950
Christian Bailey

“By looking at political and intellectual discourses from a wide array of political perspectives (conservative, Catholic, regional, social democratic), this book makes several important points in discussing various rival conceptions of Europe that never happened but that allowed a diverse array of political groupings to converge on support for European integration. This book will resonate not just with historians but also political scientists and sociologists.” Eric Langenbacher, Georgetown University

“This is a fluently written and clearly argued text, well researched and neatly organized in terms of logical structure and narrative delivery. It is fresh and original, and offers new views of intellectual life in the early years of the fledging Bonn Republic and will no doubt attract a good amount of attention in the field of post-1945 German and European History.”

Paul Betts, University of Oxford

Taking Germany as its case study, the book offers context to the post-war debates, analysing the continuities that existed between interwar and post-war plans for European integration. It draws attention to the abiding scepticism of democracy displayed by many advocates of integration, indeed suggesting that groups across the ideological spectrum converged around support for European integration as a way of constraining the practice of democracy within nation-states.

Christian Bailey is a lecturer in history at The Open University and at Balliol College, Oxford.

HELSINKI 1975 AND THE TRANSFORMATION OF EUROPE
Edited by Oliver Bange and Gottfried Niedhardt

“All contributions are valuable to the international history of détente in the 1960s and 1970s...this volume lays important groundwork...for a future history of the CSCE.” German History

It was in Europe that the Cold War reached a decisive turning point in December 1975, leading to the era of détente. The Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE), with its Final Act in Helsinki in August 1975, led to a reappraisal of the role of East and West in the fields of security, economy and culture. This volume offers a pilot study in what the authors perceive as the key issues within this process: an understanding of the ‘German problem’ (balancing the recognition of the post-war territorial status quo against a formula for the eventuality of a peaceful change of frontiers) and the Western strategy of transformation through a multiplication of contacts between the two blocs.

Oliver Bange is a Senior Researcher and Lecturer at the University of Mannheim. Gottfried Niedhardt is heading an international research project on “Détente and CSCE in Europe 1966-1975”.

FRANCE AND THE CONSTRUCTION OF EUROPE, 1944–2007
The Geopolitical Imperative
Michael Sutton

“Michael Sutton’s admirable book is a very comprehensive and very well researched history of France’s European policy since 1944, including economic aspects. Going actually beyond its title, this volume covers most major aspects of French foreign policy, in a precise as well as readable way. This makes the book useful for students, but also for professional historians and the general public.” Journal of Contemporary History

“This fine survey of France’s role in European integration since World War II...covers the most significant negotiations on European integration from early postwar plans for regional customs unions to the abortive European Constitution. Students of France’s role in European politics will find it useful for several reasons...Sutton has succeeded admirably in making his case and presenting an exceptionally lucid account of several decades of complicated political and economic maneuver.” H-Diplo

Michael Sutton is Professor Emeritus, Modern History and International Relations, at Aston University.

GENDER POLITICS IN THE EXPANDING EUROPEAN UNION
Mobilization, Inclusion, Exclusion
Edited by Silke Roth

“By assembling an impressive series of case studies that analyze gender policies in the context of the EU as a supranational policy-making institution from the perspectives of both old and new member states, Roth enshines our understanding of gender equality politics.” Choice

In May 2004, after bringing their legislation into accordance with EU regulations, ten more countries joined the European Union. The contributors to this volume assess the impact of this historical development on gender relations in the new and old EU member states. Instead of focusing on either western or eastern Europe, this book investigates the similarities and differences in diverse parts of Europe. Although initially limited, gender equality was part of the original framework of the European Union, an organization often more open than national governments to feminist demands, as this volume illustrates with case studies from eastern and western Europe. The enlargement process thus provides some important policy instruments for increasing equality between men and women.

Silke Roth is Senior Lecturer at the University of Southampton, UK.

EUROPE IN CRISIS
Intellectuals and the European Idea, 1917-1957
Edited by Mark Hewitson and Matthew D’Auria

"The contributions are of a high standard... In almost all cases there was much that is new and interesting. There is more than enough substance, interest and range for this to be an effective contribution!" Peter Stirk, Durham University

"[An] excellent introduction to the history of the concept of ‘Europe’ that preceded the founding of the European Community in 1957. Spanning a wide range of authors and topics, it is essential reading for anyone interested in the intellectual history of European integration.”
Egbert Klaustke, University College London

This volume reassesses the relationship between ideas of Europe and the European project and reconceives the impact of long and short-term political transformations on assumptions about the continent’s scope, nature, role and significance.

Mark Hewitson is Senior Lecturer in German History and Politics and Chair of the Centre for European Studies at University College London. Matthew D’Auria is a research fellow at the University of Salerno.

AUSTRIA, GERMANY AND THE COLD WAR
From the Anschluss to the State Treaty, 1938-1955
Rolf Steininger

"Steininger’s meticulous attention both to the subtle details of the negotiations (and the subsidiary issues they raised) combined with his broader view of the international context sets this book apart from the numerous other commemorative histories that appeared to mark the fiftieth anniversary, and makes it a particularly useful study to have translated into English.”
Egbert Klaustke, University College London

"Overall... Steininger has produced a compact summary of research on the Austrian State Treaty. The chronology of important events, the bibliography, and, above all, the index constitute useful tools for the reader. It is particularly welcome that this short and handy textbook summary has now been made available to a wider audience via the English-language edition.”
German Politics & Society

"[Steininger] has given us an erudite, comprehensive analysis that illuminates the important role Austria played in that initial decade of the Cold War. This book should be read by scholars, undergraduates, and graduate students who are interested in 20th-century diplomatic history of Austria and Germany and the four major powers of the Grand Alliance. It is also excellent for those interested in the Soviet mind and in Soviet diplomatic maneuverings of the first decade of the Cold War.”

COLD WAR CULTURES
Perspectives on Eastern and Western European Societies
Edited by Annette Vowinckel, Marcus M. Payk and Thomas Lindenberger

"This is a very interesting edited collection of essays that makes a valuable and indeed a pathbreaking contribution to the study of an important emerging area... It offers a very original take on the (existing) literature in that it seeks to broaden the debate to ask questions about European Cold War Cultures, as opposed to the North-American ones that have dominated the literature hitherto.”
Mark Pittaway, Open University, UK

The Cold War was not only about the imperial ambitions of the super powers, their military strategies, and antagonistic ideologies. It was also about conflicting worldviews and their correlates in the daily life of the societies involved. The term “Cold War Culture” is often used in a broad sense to describe media influences, social practices, and symbolic representations as they shape, and are shaped by, international relations. Yet, it remains in question whether — or to what extent — the Cold War Culture model can be applied to European societies, both in the East and the West.

This volume offers an important contribution to the international debate on this issue of the Cold War impact on everyday life by providing a better understanding of its history and legacy in Eastern and Western Europe.

Annette Vowinckel received her doctorate from the University of Essen and her Habilitation from Humboldt University in Berlin. Marcus M. Payk is currently a Fellow in the Department of History, Humboldt University in Berlin. Thomas Lindenberger is currently the director of the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute for European History and Public Spheres in Vienna.

CRISIS IN EUROPEAN INTEGRATION
Challenges and Responses, 1945-2005
Edited by Ludger Kühnhardt, Center for European Studies

While the major trends in European integration have been well researched and constitute key elements of narratives about its value and purpose, the crises of integration and their effects have not yet attracted sufficient attention. This volume, with original contributions by leading German scholars, suggests that crises of integration should be seen as engines of progress throughout the history of European integration rather than as expressions of failure and regression, a widely held assumption. It therefore throws new light on the current crises in European integration and provides a fascinating panorama of how challenges and responses were guiding the process during its first five decades.

Ludger Kühnhardt has been Director at the Center for European Integration Studies (ZEI) and Professor of Political Science at Bonn University since 1997.

CHANGING THE WORLD, CHANGING ONESELF
Political Protest and Collective Identities in West Germany and the U.S. in the 1960s and 1970s
Edited by Belinda Davis, Wilfried Mausbach, Martin Klimke and Carla MacDougall

“...That these essays range widely while remaining firmly grounded in their particular contexts is a testament to the cohort of scholars from around the globe that assembled the volume as well as to the diligence of the contributors themselves mostly younger scholars from institutes in the U.S., Europe and Japan. The result greatly expands our knowledge of the insurgency on both sides of the Atlantic that erupted in the 1960s and continued into the 1970s and beyond. It inspires scholars of the U.S. and Europe to rethink the meaning and limitations of the nation, to challenge narrow disciplinary constraints, and to see 1968 as part of a longer history of protest and rebellion across the continent and world.”

PROTEST BEYOND BORDERS
Contentious Politics in Europe since 1945
Edited by Hara Kouki and Eduardo Romanos

“The mixture of historical and contemporary accounts and perspectives constitutes an original and much needed approach to the study of social movements.”

Peo Hansen, Institute for Research on Migration, Ethnicity and Society (REMESO) at Linköping University, Sweden

An international and interdisciplinary dialogue is vital to not only describe the similarities and differences between the single national movements but also to evaluate how they contributed to the formation and evolution of a transnational civil society in Europe. This volume undertakes this challenge as well as questions some major assumptions of post-1945 protest and social mobilization both in Western and Eastern Europe. Historians, political scientists, sociologists and media studies scholars come together and offer insights into social movement research beyond conventional repertoires of protest and strictly defined periods, borders and paradigms, offering new perspectives on past and present processes of social change of the contemporary world.

Hara Kouki is a PhD candidate in the Law Department at Birkbeck College, London. Eduardo Romanos is a Juan de la Cierva Fellow in the Department of Sociology at the Public University of Navarre, Spain.

A EUROPEAN MEMORY?
Contested Histories and Politics of Remembrance
Edited by Malgorzata Pakier and Bo Stråth

“The book provides an extremely useful guide through the labyrinth of issues concerning Europeans and the politics of remembrance. The editors deserve great credit for taking on and attempting to represent the multiplicity of debates that characterize contemporary European visions of and debates about the past.” Central European History

“[A] very useful collection. The editors have taken an inclusive approach to Europe: chapters cover not only the large countries such as France, Germany, or Britain but also many smaller nations like Switzerland, the Czech Republic, or Hungary. Each of the national case studies provides a concise and well-organized account of historical background and present-day contours of educational time policy.” Ann Taylor Allen, University of Louisville

CONFLICTED MEMORIES
Europeanizing Contemporary Histories
Edited by Konrad Jarausch and Thomas Lindenberger With the Collaboration of Annelie Ramsbrok

Despite the growing interest in general European history, the European dimension is surprisingly absent from the writing of contemporary history. In most countries, the historiography on the 20th century continues to be dominated by national perspectives. Although there is cross-national work on specific topics such as occupation or resistance, transnational conceptions and narratives of contemporary European history have yet to be worked out. This volume focuses on the development of a shared conception of recent European history that will be required as an underpinning for further economic and political integration so as to make lasting economic reforms workable.

This work assembles the most recent reflections on the cultural unification of Europe as well as…proposes a serious interdisciplinary discussion of practices of memory. A work that is useful for whoever wishes to have an overview of the questions arising from the internationalization of national memoirs and to reflect on the role of the historian in the context of the multiple discourses on the past.” Histoire sociale/Social History

SOCIAL POLICY IN THE SMALLER EUROPEAN UNION STATES
Edited by Gary B. Cohen, Ben W. Ansell, Robert Henry Cox and Jane Gingrich

“This is an interesting and welcome volume…[whose] contribution…is to bring together a set of chapters chronicling the reform or sclerosis of welfare states in many of Europe’s smaller countries…[arguing] that there is important variation among the small states, and that both failed and successful reforms can only be understood by understanding how old coalitions could reorganize around certain ideas of change.” Pepper Culpepper, European University Institute

“…a rich book for anyone interested in the broad theme of change in European social policy, not least because it takes up a number of areas and countries which are not often covered in the literature.” Christoffer Green-Pedersen, Aarhus University

SAMIZDAT, TAMIZDAT, AND BEYOND
Transnational Media During and After Socialism
Edited by Friederike Kind-Kovacs and Jessie Labov

“Samizdat, Tamizdat, and Beyond offers a long awaited rethinking of dissent at the grassroots level. Looking primarily but not exclusively to the Eastern Bloc, this volume skillfully stretches our understanding of samizdat to incorporate visual art, music, video, and the web. The editors bring together seemingly disparate samizdat texts by placing them within the larger context of transnationalism, gender, and mass media. In so doing, they remind us that dissent is, first and foremost, a creative human endeavor; one that not only has a history but also a future.” Paulina Bren, Vassar College

The information and insights contained in this volume fill the gap in our knowledge about the vitality, diversity, and ongoing relevance of samizdat/tamizdat and alternative media not only in the post-Communist states represented here, but in emerging democracies in other regions of the world, e.g. the Middle East and Asia.” Michael Long, Baylor University

VISIONS OF THE END OF THE COLD WAR IN EUROPE, 1945-1990
Edited by Frédéric Bozo, Marie-Pierre Rey, N. Piers Ludlow and Bernd Rother

“This is an excellent collection of articles on an extremely interesting subject. The multinational and multi-archival nature of the selections is very impressive, and it attests to the health and vitality of international relations research in today’s academy. This is the type of book that should be examined by both experts. Evaluating how institutions establish facts and ascribe responsibilities, this volume presents a historiographical and epistemological reflection on the very possibility of writing a history of the present time.” Paulina Bren, Vassar College

INVESTIGATING SREBRENICA
Institutions, Facts, Responsibilities
Isabelle Delpia, Xavier Bougarel and Jean-Louis Fournel

In July 1995, the Bosnian Serb Army commanded by General Ratko Mladic attacked the enclave of Srebrenica, a UN “safe area” since 1993, and massacred about 8,000 Bosnian men. While the responsibility for the massacre itself lies clearly with the Serb political and military leadership, the question of the responsibility of various international organizations and national authorities for the fall of the enclave is still passionately discussed, and has given rise to various rumors and conspiracy theories. Follow-up investigations by the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia and by several commissions have dissipated most of these rumors and contributed to a better knowledge of the Srebrenica events and the part played by the main local and international actors. This volume represents the first systematic, comparative analysis of those investigations. It brings together analyses from both the external standpoint of academics and the inside perspective of various professionals who participated directly in the inquiries, including police officers, members of parliament, high-ranking civil servants, and other experts. Evaluating how institutions establish facts and ascribe responsibilities, this volume presents a historiographical and epistemological reflection on the very possibility of writing a history of the present time.”

A STATE OF PEACE IN EUROPE
West Germany and the CSCE, 1966-1975
Petri Hakkarainen

“[With this book]… Petri Hakkarainen delivers an outstanding diplomatic history of West Germany’s evolving policy on the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe in its preparatory stages…[His] account breaks new empirical ground chiefly in its portrayal of the substance and character of West German CSCE policy…[and] makes an important historiographical contribution alongside its empirical one.” German History

“Petri Hakkarainen deserves commendation for his thorough and well-researched account of West German government strategies and actions with regard to the CSCE between 1966 and 1975. This is true in particular for his refusal to write deterministic history from hindsight. This book is a very solid, reliable, and convincing piece of history on policy deliberations and diplomatic negotiations conducted by the West German government.”

PLACES OF PAIN
Forced Displacement, Popular Memory and Trans-local Identities in Bosnian War-torn Communities
Hariz Halilovich

“This is one of the most powerful accounts – the most powerful account by a survivor – of the impact of forced displacement in the wake of the Bosnian conflict. The book is a survivor’s account and at the same time a scholarly critique of what happened. It is an exemplar of engaged and informed writing: moving and informative, evocative and profound. It is a deeply serious book, but with the light touch of an accomplished writer.”
Ron Adams, Victoria University

“This manuscript addressed the complexity of lives of the Bosnian diaspora and issues of the trans-local identities like no other book before. The fact that the author has himself experienced the war and the refugee experience, as well as demonstrated the awareness of the process of forging his own new-old identity, contributes greatly to the quality of this manuscript.”
Edina Becirevic, University of Sarajevo

This is a first-class text, covering a hitherto neglected topic. It is original and of a very high intellectual standard. It is crisply written, well structured, based on extensive primary research and guided by a solid theoretical understanding...there are very few English-language books in this field that really impress me, but this is one of them.”

POST-COMMUNIST NOSTALGIA
Edited by Maria Todorova and Zsuzsa Gille

“This book serves an invaluable function by capturing the rich complexity of nostalgia and marking a moment when questions of postmodern historiography can be applied to a past, the recent Communist one, for which the pressures toward absolute evaluations are immense. [It] summarizes some of the scholarship that one might include with the ‘contemporary history’ of the region...This volume should have broad general appeal across a market for post-Communist cultural studies and the study of memory.”
H-Habsburg

“Overall, this is an impressive set of essays that makes a weighty contribution to the study of nostalgia in the European East after socialism. It adds significantly to the burgeoning literature on the infinitely complex and fascinating subject of social remembrance...Scholars and students interested in how memory works (and fails) will find much to appreciate in Post-Communist Nostalgia.”
Anthropology of East Europe Review

This volume nicely illustrates that nostalgia talk is symptomatic of ongoing struggles over the ‘truths’ of post-socialist history...[It] makes an important ethnographic and theoretical contribution to memory, history, and identity studies in the region and beyond. By exploring the complex and often unpredictable social (life of socialism in the realm of memory) (Berdahl), it illustrates that sometimes, as Todorova claims, it can be very hard to predict what our pasts are going to be.”

POSTSOCIALISM
Politics and Emotions in Central and Eastern Europe
Edited by Mariuka Svašek

“In conclusion, the intersection of politics and emotions in the postsocialist countries is definitely an interesting and daring academic journey, situated at the crossroads of political science and psychology. The pioneering work of the contributors furthers the academic boundaries of the disciplines, and adds an interdisciplinary richness to both fields of knowledge.”
Social Anthropology

“The authors of these essays present nuanced analyses of ethnographic data from a number of substantive fields, all significant and relevant beyond their immediate empirical focus. For this reason, and thanks to the essays’ easily accessible language and novel theoretical focus, this book is an excellent scholarly contribution to the growing literature on social change in Eastern Europe, and could also serve as a textbook for students of social change both at the graduate and undergraduate level.”
The Historian

SOCIALIST ESCAPES
Breaking Away from Ideology and Everyday Routine in Eastern Europe, 1945-1989
Edited by Cathleen Giustino, Catherine G. Plum and Alexander Vari

“This is a superb collection of essays focusing on what the authors refer to as ‘socialist escapes’ in postwar eastern Europe under state socialism, i.e., on the everyday efforts of ordinary individuals to escape regime regimentation and control, as well as the challenges of everyday life, through a variety of leisure pursuits and activities. Written by a group of talented young scholars who demonstrate a thorough grounding in the former East European archives, the essays are well written and cohere very nicely.”

Andrew I. Port, Wayne State University

The essays in this volume examine sites of socialist escapes, such as beaches, camp sites, nightclubs, concerts, castles, cars, and soccer matches. The chapters explore the effectiveness of state efforts to engineer society through leisure, entertainment, and related forms of cultural programming and consumption. This volume leads to a deeper understanding of state-society relations in the East Bloc, where the state did not simply “dictate from above,” and inhabitants had some opportunities to shape solidarities, identities, and meaning.

Cathleen M. Giustino is Professor of History at Auburn University. Catherine J. Plum is Associate Professor of History at Western New England University. Alexander Vari is Associate Professor of Modern European History at Marywood University.

POST-COSMOPOLITAN CITIES
Explorations of Urban Coexistence
Edited by Caroline Humphrey and Vera Skvirska

“This volume captures the spirit of the renewed interest in the city well and delivers a lively set of essays. Here, the shift away from the usual story about immigration and how to cope with it takes us, instead, to a widely shared perception of the loss of diversity and shared lifestyle, often without regard for actual statistics on multi-ethnic urban populations.”

Bruce Grant, New York University

Examining the way people imagine and interact in their cities, this book explores the post-cosmopolitan city. The contributors consider the effects of migration, national, and religious revivals, the dispositions of marginalized economic actors, and globalized tourism on urban sociality. The case studies here share the situation of having been incorporated in previous political regimes (imperial, colonial, socialist) that one way or another created their own kind of cosmopolitanism, and now these cities are experiencing the aftermath of these regimes while being exposed to new national politics and migratory flows of people.

Caroline Humphrey is a Research Director in the Department of Social Anthropology at the University of Cambridge. Vera Skvirska is a postdoctoral researcher in the Department of Anthropology at Copenhagen University.

BITTERSWEET EUROPE
Albanian and Georgian Discourses on Europe, 1878-2008
Adrian Brisku

“This is a very original work. There is today a huge amount of literature on the meaning of Europe, but very little work has been done on what Europe means (and meant) at its periphery. This book addresses a significant lacuna in the literature and it does so by focusing on two countries that have never been compared from this point of view.”

Chiara Bottici, New School for Social Research, New York

“The monograph is a valuable text which carefully elaborates Albanian and Georgian discourses since the 1870s up till now. It draws up massive new material unknown to readers outside the relevant countries. The book focuses on an enlightening comparison between the two countries and two developments.”

Attila Melegh, Corvinus University, Budapest

Adrian Brisku is a research fellow at the University of Helsinki, working on the “Research Project Europe 1815-1914,” funded by the European Research Council (ERC).

ENDURING SOCIALISM
Explorations of Revolution and Transformation, Restoration and Continuation
Edited by Harry G. West and Parvathi Raman

“This provides an important counterpoint to prevailing claims that socialism, in all its modes and meanings, was quickly abandoned by populations that were hungry to embrace the freedoms of a market-oriented economy… reveals its ambitious scope and its broad, comparative approach toward understanding the complex anxieties and uncertainties that people continue to face in transforming societies.”

Journal of Anthropological Research

Against the historical backdrop of successive socialist and post-socialist claims to have completely remade society, the contributors to this volume explore the complex and often paradoxical continuities between diverse post-socialist presents and their corresponding socialist and pre-socialist pasts. The chapters focus on ways in which: pre-socialist economic, political, and cultural forms have in fact endured in a purportedly postsocialist era, despite the claims of neo-liberal reformers.

Harry G. West is Reader in Social Anthropology at the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS). Parvathi Raman is a Lecturer in Social Anthropology at the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS).

DIASTROPA ONLINE
Identity Politics and Romanian Migrants

Ruxandra Trandafoiu

This was a high quality, well written manuscript on the Romanian diaspora. It was very informative, providing interesting commentary and information on a relatively unknown diasporic community.” Eugenia Siapera, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki

After the fall of the Iron Curtain in 1989, millions of Romanians emigrated in search of work and new experiences, they became engaged in an interrogation of what it meant to be Romanian in a united Europe and the globalized world. Their thoughts, feelings, and hopes soon began to populate the virtual world of digital and mobile technologies. This book chronicles the online cultural and political expressions of the Romanian diaspora, using websites based in Europe and North America. Through online exchanges, Romanians perform new types of citizenship, articulated from the margins of the political field. The politicization of their diasporic condition is manifested through written and public protests against discriminatory work legislation, mobilization, lobbying, cultural promotion, and setting up associations and political parties that are proof of the gradual institutionalization of informal communications. Online discourse analysis, supplemented by interviews with migrants, poets, and politicians, involved in the process of defining new diasporic identities, provides the basis of a book which defines the new cultural and political practices of the Romanian diaspora.

Ruxandra Trandafoiu is a senior lecturer in communication at Edge Hill University.

BORDER INTERROGATIONS
Questioning Spanish Frontiers
Edited by Benita Sampedro Vizcaya and Simon Doubleday

“These twelve essays consider in an exemplary fashion geographical, cultural, gender, linguistic, disciplinary, and other Spanish borders…All-in-all, this book is not only worth reading, but an admirable example of where contemporary Hispanism can be found.” Bulletin of Spanish Studies

“Read together or individually, these essays mark an impressive display of knowledge of Spanish cultural and historical identity both in width and profundity, and, more importantly, of the marginalized, suppressed, or ignored elements that undermine that knowledge. If you think you know Spain, think again; you will find something, if not many things, in this collection to challenge your perceptions. A valuable resource for students and professors alike, as well as any reader with a desire to better understand the complications, ambiguities, and fluctuation of modern and historical Spain.” Bulletin of the Association of Spanish and Portuguese Historical Studies

IMMIGRATION POLICY IN THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY

Negotiating Membership and Remaking the Nation
Douglas B. Klusmeyer and Demetrios G. Papademetriou

"The authors are two of the most innovative and refreshing thinkers on migration and integration policy worldwide. What makes this book extraordinary is its nuanced evaluation of historical and contemporary migration policies, including all the ambivalence and contradictions that have accompanied these policy debates in Germany. The book also details the positive paradigm of change that has recently emerged; it identifies new opportunities and unsealed challenges in German migration and integration policies. With this book, the authors have made a timely and very important contribution to understanding the root causes and key challenges to immigration reform in the Federal Republic of Germany."
Rita Süssmuth, Chair of the EU High Level Group on "Social Integration of Ethnic Minorities and their Full Participation in the Labour Market"

"...[The] most authoritative and comprehensive study ever written on German immigration, citizenship and asylum policies. It offers a fresh view on well and less well known facts interpreted and put into perspective by two well known scholars of international migration policy"
Rainer Münz, Senior Fellow at the Hamburg Institute of International Economics

Douglas B. Klusmeyer teaches in the Department of Justice, Law and Society in the School of Public Affairs at American University, Washington, DC. Demetrios G. WALLS, BORDERS, BOUNDARIES

Spatial and Cultural Practices in Europe
Edited by Marc Silberman, Karen E. Till and Janet Ward

"[A] revealing reflection and interpretation upon the development of post–World War II Europe. It offers a vision of imposed borders and boundaries that have become familiar yet remain disturbing; such a dichotomy is explored in various ways in the essays to make a provocative and fascinating book. The book is especially strong in the combination of the empirical and theoretical, treating borders and boundaries at many different levels from the purely physical to the social, cultural and political, as well as the symbolic. [It is]...a very welcome addition to the field."
Wendy Pullan, University of Cambridge

FRAGMENTED FATHERLAND

Immigration and Cold War Conflict in the Federal Republic of Germany 1945-1980
Alexander Clarkson

"This is an excellent book, informative as well as thought-provoking. The argument is quite original, embedded in a rich context of political-cultural change over a span of several decades, without overwhelming the reader with party-political detail. The author does a tremendous job of presenting very complex institutional relationships."
Joyce Marie Mushaben, University of Missouri-St. Louis

1945 to 1980 marks an extensive period of mass migration of students, refugees, ex-soldiers, and workers from an extraordinarily wide range of countries to West Germany. Turkish, Kurdish, and Italian groups have been studied extensively, and while this book uses these groups as points of comparison, it focuses on ethnic communities of varying social structures—from Spain, Iran, Ukraine, Greece, Croatia, and Albania—and examines the interaction between immigrant networks and West German state institutions as well as the ways in which patterns of cooperation and conflict differ. This study demonstrates how the social consequences of mass immigration became intertwined with the ideological battles of Cold War Germany and how the political life and popular movements within these immigrant communities played a crucial role in shaping West German society.

Alexander Clarkson is currently Lecturer in the German and European Studies Departments at King’s College London.

TURKS IN EUROPE

From Guest Worker to Transnational Citizen
Nermin Abadan-Unat

Translated from German by Catherine Campion

With a Foreword by Stephen Castles, University of Sydney and Oxford University

"...an invaluable reference work for scholars in the social sciences and the humanities."
Journal of Contemporary European Studies

Anyone who has studied international migration to Western Europe should be familiar with Nermin Abadan-Unat, who has been a central figure in charting Turkish labor migration to Germany, the Netherlands, France, and other European countries since the early 1960s. In addition, she has made major contributions to the broader social sciences. She is especially known for her research on the position of women—in Turkey, in international migration, and in processes of social development...Her many books and scientific articles span the social sciences, and this has given her the ability to make linkages and to unravel complex processes of development, modernization, and globalization. From the Foreword

Nermin Abadan-Unat teaches at Boğaziçi University.

CAPRICIOUS BORDERS
Minority, Population, and Counter-Conduct Between Greece and Turkey
Olga Demetriou

“This book is well-conceived, coherently structured, beautifully written and analytically sophisticated. It is a thoughtful, insightful and persuasively argued account of how through marriage, land transactions, naming, etc., the traces of the state underpin the construction and production of ‘minority’.”
Hastings Donnan, Queens University, Belfast

“This is a truly excellent ethnography of the complexities of identity and existence for Turkish-speakers of Northern Greece. It is meticulously researched, thorough and immensely interesting in its exposition of the conflicted subjectivities of the Turkish minorities of contemporary Greece... a much needed, crucial contribution to the anthropology of south-eastern Europe, the anthropology politics, states and nationalism, and of ethnicity, identity, and subjectivity.”
Yael Navaro-Yashin, University of Cambridge

Olga Demetriou is Senior Research consultant at the PRO Cyprus Centre of the International Peace Research Institute, Oslo.

WOMEN MIGRANTS FROM EAST TO WEST
Gender, Mobility and Belonging in Contemporary Europe
Edited by Luisa Passerini, Dawn Lyon, Enrica Capussotti and Ioanna Laliotou

“...the result of an exciting oral history project...this rich edited volume offers a compelling look at the meanings of the feminization of intra-European migration...One of the primary strengths of the volume is its effective approach to the collection and transmission of oral histories.”
Oral History

Based on the oral histories of eighty migrant women and thirty additional interviews with ‘native’ women in the ‘receiving’ countries, this volume documents the contemporary phenomenon of the feminisation of migration through an exploration of the lives of women, who have moved from Bulgaria and Hungary to Italy and the Netherlands. It assumes migrants to be active subjects, creating possibilities and taking decisions in their own lives, as well as being subject to legal and political regulation, and the book analyses the new forms of subjectivity that come about through mobility.

Luisa Passerini is currently External Professor at the European University Institute, Florence, and Visiting Professor in the Oral History Master Program, Columbia University, New York. Dawn Lyon is Lecturer in Sociology at the University of Kent, UK. Enrica Capussotti is Research Fellow in the Department of History, University of Siena, Italy. Ioanna Laliotou is Assistant Professor in Contemporary History, University of Thessaly, Greece.

BLOOD AND ORANGES
Immigrant Labor and European Markets in Rural Greece
Christopher M. Lawrence

“This is a book well worth reading...it offers a comprehensive background to the studied society and the complex social relationships at all levels that dominate this rural Greek microcosm. This is an excellent book, of interest to those studying globalization and the integration of markets but also those interested in contemporary Greek society and its entanglements.”
Labour History Review

“Lawrence’s ethnography is a valuable and intriguing contribution not only to the ethnography of Greece but to the anthropology of globalization and politics. The detailed and multi-level analysis of social, political and economic transformations is both critical and well placed...[it] reminds anthropology of the necessity of a critical, detailed and encompassing political analysis of the interactions and articulations between the contradictory processes, discourses and practices between people and socio-economic systems, between people and the formations and transformations of power.” Durham Anthropology Journal

Christopher Lawrence spent 13 months living and working in a group of three Greek villages while carrying out the research for this book. He currently lives in New York City and teaches at The City University of New York and the New York City Department of Education.
