POWERLESS SCIENCE?
Science and Politics in a Toxic World
Edited by Soraya Boudia and Nathalie Jas

“This is an innovative, very well organized and overall well written book on one of the most pressing issues of today’s society: the way chemicals contaminate the environment, and how we deal with it…most of the chapters cleverly combine the case study approach with universal features. It is surprising how well this works, both in the chapters and in the book at large.”
Carsten Reinhardt, CEO and President of the Chemical Heritage Foundation (Philadelphia)

This book looks at complex historical, social, and political dynamics, made up of public controversies, environmental and health crises, economic interests, and political responses, and demonstrates how and to what extent scientific knowledge about toxicants has been caught between scientific, economic, and political imperatives.

Soraya Boudia is Professor of Science, Technology, and Innovation Studies at the University of Paris-Est Marne-la-Vallée. Nathalie Jas is a Senior Researcher at the French National Institute for Agricultural Research (INRA).

MANAGING THE UNKNOWN
Essays on Environmental Ignorance
Edited by Frank Uekötter and Uwe Lübken

“This is an interesting and well written set of essays that provides fresh and illuminating insights on many important topics, which makes it indispensable to practitioners and students of environmental history across the globe. Indeed, because it comments on so many topical issues, it should be of interest to anyone concerned about current environmental problems, their origins and possible solutions (especially making manufacturing, forestry and farming sustainable, controlling waste and pollution and finding renewable energy sources). The chapters are of a uniformly high standard and the introduction expertly places them in context.”
Tom Brooking, University of Orta

With its combination of empirical case studies and theoretical reflection, the essays make a significant contribution to the interdisciplinary debate on the production and resilience of ignorance. At the same time, this volume combines insights from different continents as well as the seas in between and thus sketches outlines of an emerging global resource history.

Frank Uekötter is Reader at the School of History and Cultures of the University of Birmingham. Uwe Lübken joined the Rachel Carson Center for Environment and Society in 2009 and currently serves as director of the project “Disaster Migration in a Historical Perspective”.

CREATING WILDERNESS
A Transnational History of the Swiss National Park
Patrick Kupper
Translated from the German by Giselle Weiss

WINNER OF THE TURKU BOOK PRIZE OF THE EUROPEAN SOCIETY FOR ENVIRONMENTAL HISTORY AND THE RACHEL CARSON CENTER FOR ENVIRONMENT AND SOCIETY

“This is environmental history of the first order, ranging widely across geographical scales and historical periods to trace the changing discourses and manifestations of the national park model.”
Andrew Denning, Western Washington University

The history of the Swiss National Park, from its creation in the years before the Great War to the present, is told for the first time in this book.

Patrick Kupper is Senior Lecturer for environmental history and history of science and technology at ETH Zurich.

RIVERS, MEMORY, AND NATION-BUILDING
A History of the Volga and Mississippi Rivers
Dorothy Zeisler-Vralsted

As well as offering a worthy and inspired comparison, this is a genuine and systematic comparison with a clear structure and steadily building momentum: a good balance is struck between the two rivers and the author frequently alternates between them, but without confusing the reader.”
Peter Coates, The University of Bristol

Dorothy Zeisler-Vralsted is Professor of Government and International Affairs at Eastern Washington University.

CIVILIZING NATURE
National Parks in Global Historical Perspective
Edited by Bernhard Gissibl, Sabine Höhler and Patrick Kupper

“The editors are to be congratulated for their strong cast of contributors and the fine essays that represent the fruits of cutting-edge research.”
Environment and History

This volume adopts an historical and transnational perspective on the global geography of protected areas and its changes over time.

Bernhard Gissibl is Postdoctoral Researcher at the Leibniz-Institute of European History in Mainz. Sabine Höhler is Associate Professor of Science and Technology Studies at KTH Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm. Patrick Kupper is Senior Lecturer at ETH Zurich.

URBAN POLLUTION

Cultural Meanings, Social Practices

Edited By Eveline Dürr and Rivke Jaffe

“... this volume offers a range of useful accounts of cultural construction of pollution, deployed as an idiom in the ordering and negotiating of social relations in a range of urban settings. The illustration of how assertions of pollution are racialized, gendered, and classed, and the range of debates in which pollution is deployed as a discursive as well as material form, usefully broaden the frame of urban and environmental anthropology.” Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute

“These essays, are of high academic quality and present often penetrating ethnographic and historical insight into the negotiation of (im)purity in a variety of cultural contexts. They offer a stimulating and engaging read.”

Aidan Davison, University of Tasmania

Re-examining Mary Douglas’ work on pollution and concepts of purity, this volume explores modern expressions of these themes in urban areas, examining the intersections of material and cultural pollution.

Eveline Dürr is Professor at the Institute of Social and Cultural Anthropology, Ludwig Maximilians University, Munich. Rivke Jaffe is Associate Professor at the Centre for Urban Studies, University of Amsterdam.

NEW SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

An Appraisal of the Gulf Region

Edited by Paul Sillitoe

“This is clearly the most comprehensive overview of sustainable development in the Gulf, a strategic region within the global economy.” Carl Maida, University of California, Los Angeles

“This volume amounts to a well edited, comprehensive, collection of sustainable development papers, strongly introduced and concluded by the editor, on a region that surely no one could doubt can only gain from the salutary environmental analysis time after time it offers.”

Raymond Apthorpe, SOAS University of London

Bringing together university faculty and government personnel from the Gulf, Europe, and North America, this volume gives a wide ranging introduction focusing on the arid Gulf region and beyond, where the challenges of sustainable development are starkly evident.

Paul Sillitoe is Assistant Professor of Anthropology at Durham University and onetime Shell Chair in Sustainable Development at Qatar University.

Malagasy and Swiss Imaginations of One Another

Eva Keller

“Keller looks beyond glossy promotions... [Her] analysis is never dry or overly academic, and will be a rewarding read for experts in the field along with those new to the issues.”

Nigel Rothfels, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee

This ethnography examines how the cooperation between a national park in Madagascar and a Swiss zoo is perceived by ordinary people at either end.

Eva Keller has been carrying out anthropological research in Madagascar since 1998 and is currently a research fellow at the Department of Social Anthropology at the University of Zurich.

ETHNOBOTANY IN THE NEW EUROPE
People, Health and Wild Plant Resources
Edited by Manuel Pardo-de-Santayana, Andrea Pieroni and Rajindra K. Puri

“The text itself is useful, entertaining, and informative. In addition, each chapter is a model for modern ethnobotanical studies. Rather than simply cataloguing plant use, each researcher analyses the historical, societal, economic, or political aspects relevant to changes in human plant usage. Thus, the authors provide a true ethnobotanical resource that can be instructive to academic audiences.” Choice

The authors and studies presented in this book reflect work being conducted across Europe’s many regions. They tell the story of the on-going evolution of human-plant relations in one of the most bioculturally dynamic places on the planet, and explore new approaches that link the re-evaluation of plant-based cultural heritage with the conservation and use of biocultural diversity.

Manuel Pardo-de-Santayana is a Senior Lecturer of botany and ethnobotany at the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid. Andrea Pieroni is an Associate Professor of plant biology and ethnobotany at the University of Gastronomic Sciences in Pollenzo, Northern Italy. Rajindra K. Puri is a Senior Lecturer in environmental anthropology and ethnobotany at the University of Kent at Canterbury, UK.

MOBILITY AND MIGRATION IN INDIGENOUS AMAZONIA
Contemporary Ethnogeographical Perspectives
Edited by Miguel N. Alexiades

“This impressive compilation exploring multiple facets of ethnogeography and mobility will have broad appeal to audiences of anthropology, cultural geography, ethnogeography, ethnobotany, and Latin American studies.” Anthropos

Drawing on a wide range of historical time frames (from pre-conquest times to the present) and ethnogeographical contexts, different chapters examine the complex and important links between migration and the classification, management, and domestication of plants and landscapes, as well as the incorporation and transformation of environmental knowledge, practices, ideologies and identities.

Miguel N. Alexiades is Senior Lecturer at University of Kent, Canterbury (UK) and the Cultural Landscapes and Resource Rights Program Manager at People and Plants International (PPI).

LANDSCAPE ETHNOECOLOGY
Concepts of Biotic and Physical Space
Edited by Leslie Main Johnson and Eugene S. Hunn

“This landmark volume is bound to become a theoretical touchstone and wellspring for assessing the unity and diversity of human conceptualisations of landscape.” Focaal

Thomas F. Thornton, School of Geography and Environment, University of Oxford

The contributors go beyond the TEK literature and offer valuable insights on ecology and on land and resources management, emphasizing the perception of landscape above the level of species and their folk classification.

Leslie Main Johnson is Associate Professor in the Centre for Social Science, Athabasca University, Alberta, Canada. Eugene S. Hunn is Professor Emeritus in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Washington, Seattle.

NEw POWER AND ARCHITECTURE
The Construction of Capitals and the Politics of Space
Edited by Michael Minkenberg

...a fascinating topic for architects, urban designers and urban master planners...the interaction of political power, political-philosophical ideas about the state, and built form...The contributors are clearly experts on their topics, and no single author could even have handled the [subject matter] with this combination of breadth and depth”
Sir Peter Hall, University College London

This volume addresses the reciprocal relationships between identity, regime formation, urban planning, and public architecture in the Western world. It examines the role of urban design and architecture in expressing (or hiding) ideological beliefs and political agenda. Case studies include ‘old’ capitals such as Rome, Vienna, Berlin and Warsaw, ‘new’ ones such as Washington DC, Ottawa, Canberra, Ankara, Born, and Brasilia, and the ‘European’ capital Brussels.

Michael Minkenberg is Professor of Comparative Politics at the European University Viadrina in Frankfurt (Oder).

BERLIN, ALEXANDERPLATZ
Transforming Place in a Unified Germany
Gisa Weszkalnys

“Weszkalnys undertakes a fascinating exploration of the planning process, the intellectual debate and political contest over reconstruction, and the multiple roles of citizenship in the reunified city”
H-Net Reviews

Weszkalnys’ study of a plaza demonstrates the rich potential insights from a careful, nuanced examination of urban institutions, political symbolism, residents, state functionaries, and the places in which they dwell! POLAR

A benchmark study in the changing field of urban anthropology, Berlin, Alexanderplatz is an ethnographic examination of the rapid transformation of the unified Berlin. Through a captivating account of the controversy around this symbolic public square in East Berlin, the book raises acute questions about expertise, citizenship, government and belonging.

Gisa Weszkalnys studied in Berlin and Cambridge and received her PhD in Social Anthropology from the University of Cambridge.

BLOOM AND BUST
Urban Landscapes in the East since German Reunification
Edited by Gwyneth Cliver and Carrie Smith-Prei

“I think the premise of the collection is a promising one, to shift focus from the Berlin-centric approaches to the relationship between the past and urban space, towards the areas of Eastern Germany that are frequently overlooked...the book forms a useful complement to other studies of the cityscape in the post-unification period” Simon Ward, University of Aberdeen

More than two decades of deconstruction, renovation, and reconstruction have left the urban environments in the former German Democratic Republic completely transformed. This volume considers the changing urban landscapes in the former East create the cultural landscape of modern unified Germany.

Gwyneth Cliver is Assistant Professor of German at the University of Nebraska at Omaha. Carrie Smith-Prei is Associate Professor of German Studies at the University of Alberta and holds a PhD from Washington University in St.

URBAN VIOLENCE IN THE MIDDLE EAST
Changing Cityscapes in the Transition from Empire to Nation State
Edited by Ulrike Freitag, Nelida Fuccaro, Nora Lafi, and Claudia Schröder

“This is a very remarkable collection of chapters...The totality is a lively read, exhibiting an almost universal familiarity with and appreciation of the literature”
Peter Sluglett, National University of Singapore

Covering a period from the late eighteenth century to today, this volume explores the phenomenon of urban violence in order to unveil general developments and historical specificities in a variety of Middle Eastern contexts. By situating incidents in particular processes and conflicts, the case studies seek to counter notions of a violent Middle East in order to foster a new understanding of violence beyond that of a meaningless and destructive social and political act. Contributions explore processes sparked by the transition from empires — Ottoman and Qajar, but also European — to the formation of nation states, and the resulting changes in cityscapes throughout the region.

Ulrike Freitag directs Zentrum Moderner Orient and teaches at the Freie Universität. Nelida Fuccaro is Reader in Modern Middle Eastern History at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. Nora Lafi is researcher at Zentrum Moderner Orient. Claudia Schröder holds a Master of Arts degree in history and political science and studied Arabic in Damascus and Berlin.

POST-COSMOPOLITAN CITIES
Explorations of Urban Coexistence
Edited by Caroline Humphrey and Vera Skvirskaja

"In their new book, Caroline Humphrey and Vera Skvirskaja have excelled in building a...magnificent world of cultural identities without end. The authors and editors offer a compelling exploration of the multilayered ideas about what makes ‘us’ and ‘them’ in six cities: Odessa, Tblisi, Warsaw, Venice, Thessalonica, and Qormi...Humphrey and Skvirskaja take the deeper anthropological, micro-sociological, and political perspectives in the everyday experiences of people. And in this they do an excellent job.” Slavic Review

Examining the way people imagine and interact in their cities, this book explores the post-cosmopolitan city. The contributors consider the effects of migration, national, and transnational religious revivals (with their new aesthetic sensibilities), the dispositions of marginalized economic actors, and globalized tourism on urban sociality.

Caroline Humphrey is a Research Director in the Department of Social Anthropology at the University of Cambridge. Vera Skvirskaja is a postdoctoral researcher in the Department of Anthropology at Copenhagen University.

EXTREME HERITAGE MANAGEMENT
The Practices and Policies of Densely Populated Islands
Edited by Godfrey Baldacchino

Foreword by Mark B. Lapping, University of Southern Maine

Published in association with Island Studies Press, Institute of Anthropology, University of Prince Edward Island, Canada

This excellent and timely collection of essays follows in the wake of several recent works that constitute what can be discerned as a growing recognition of the Mediterranean as a complicated whole.” Cultural Analysis

Edited by Maria Kousis, Tom Selwyn and David Clark

"...by insisting on contentiousness and unstable characters of identities and politics that are continuously reproduced within and across the region, the collection testifies to an innovative attitude, providing an insightful framework for the understanding of the Mediterranean as a complicated whole.”

Social Anthropology/Anthropologie sociale

Edited by Cordula Gdaniec

THE SOCIAL LIFE OF WATER
Edited by John Richard Wagner

“This book fills an important niche on water related issues in anthropology by focusing on social and cultural manifestations of water management, use, and conflict... The organization is appropriate and effective.”

Benedict J. Colombi, American Indian Studies Program, University of Arizona

Relying on first-hand ethnographic research, the contributors to this volume examine the social life of water in diverse settings and explore the impacts of commodification, urbanization, and technology on the availability and quality of water supplies. Each case study speaks to a local set of issues, but the overall perspective is global, with representation from all continents.

LANDSCAPES BEYOND LAND
Routes, Aesthetics, Narratives
Edited by Arnar Árnason, Nicolas Ellison, Jo Vergunst and Andrew Whitehouse

“The main theoretical aim of the book, to move beyond a dichotomy between experience and structure in the anthropological study of landscape, is important and makes a lot of sense in relation to the existing literature on the topic... This new collection is timely... exceptionally rich and interesting and clearly demonstrate that anthropological thinking on landscape is alive and well.”

Paola Fillipucci, Cambridge University

Land is embedded in a multitude of material and cultural contexts, through which the human experience of landscape emerges. Ethnographers, with their participative approaches of practice within environmental anthropology.

Perspectives on the Home, Hearth and Household in the Circumpolar North
Edited by David G. Anderson, Robert P. Wishart, and Virginie Vaté

“A very exciting book that addresses classical topics of anthropology of the North: housing, hearth and household, with a completely renewed approach. Chapters reconsider central issues in the study of material culture and social organization with a vivid ethnography and a compelling theoretical questioning.”

Charles Stéphanoff, Sodsonne

Based on years of in-depth research, this book presents and analyzes how the people of the circumpolar regions conceive, build, memorialize, and live in their dwellings. This book seeks to set a new standard for interdisciplinary work within the humanities and social sciences and includes anthropological work on vernacular architecture, environmental anthropology, household archaeology and demographics.

David G. Anderson is Professor of Anthropology and Chair in Anthropology of the North at the University of Aberdeen. Robert P. Wishart is Lecturer at the University of Aberdeen. Virginie Vaté is an anthropologist and a researcher at the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (CNRS) in France.

THE GADDI BEYOND PASTORALISM
Making Place in the Indian Himalayas
Anja Wagner

“Accompanied by Latour, Ingold and Descola, Wagner takes the reader on a fascinating journey through the social and religious landscapes as seen by the Gaddi people of Himachal Pradesh. Linking kinship to photography, Shiva worship to para-gliding, music videos to pilgrimage, Wagner departs from clichés and stereotypes to reveal a picture of contemporary Gaddi life that moves beyond their customary occupation as nomadic herders of sheep and goats.”

Richard Axelby, SOAS, London University

Based on extensive fieldwork, this book not only describes a contemporary understanding of the Gaddi’s engagement with the environment but also analyzes religious practices and performances of social relations, as well as media practices and notions of aesthetics. Thereby, the landscape in which the Gaddi live is understood as a network of places that is constantly being built and rebuilt through these local practices. The book contributes to the growing interest in approaches of practice within environmental anthropology.

Anja Wagner is Lecturer in Social Anthropology at the University of Münster.

GARDENING THE WORLD
Agency, Identity and the Ownership of Water
Veronica Strang

"An interesting example of how to use the technique of ethnographic juxtaposition to highlight multiplicity… The experimental and evocative style… would make this book especially useful for undergraduate teaching, for courses on the comparative study of water, and for the examination of Australian history and politics." American Anthropologist

"[This book] is both an impressive, intellectual synthesis of long-term ethnographic research and a provocation for water users and academic writers. Strang writes fluidly about two specific Australian water basins, yet readers will immediately be struck with the strong parallels in water use and policy from their own regions." Journal of Anthropological Research

Based on long-term ethnographic fieldwork in two major Australian river catchments (the Mitchell River in Cape York, and the Brisbane River in southeast Queensland), this book examines their major water using and managing groups: indigenous communities, farmers, industries, recreational and domestic water users, and environmental organisations.

Veronica Strang is a Professor of Anthropology and Executive Director of the Institute of Advanced Study at Durham University.

OGATA-MURA
Sowing Dissent and Reclaiming Identity in a Japanese Farming Village
Donald C. Wood

"In his densely detailed, long-term study of Ogata-mura, Wood has taken us a lifetime away from the first studies of Japanese villages carried out by foreigners in the 1930s and 1950s. Wood presents an excellent analysis of the conflict between the view held by some residents that farming is a way of life and the conviction by others that it is a business like any other. Wood is able to provide a degree of detail that most ethnographers would envy." Asian Anthropology

Based on seventeen years of research, this book explores the process of Ogata-mura’s development from the planning stages to the present. An intensive ethnographic study of the relationship between land reclamation, agriculture, and politics in regional Japan, it traces the internal social effects of the village’s economic transformations while addressing the politics in regional Japan, it traces the internal social effects of the village’s economic transformations while addressing the implications of national policy at the municipal and regional levels.

NATURE OF THE MIRACLE YEARS
Conservation in West Germany, 1945-1975
Sandra Chaney

Published in Association with the German Historical Institute, Washington

CHOICE OUTSTANDING ACADEMIC TITLE 2009

‘…the first book-length study in English of the ideas, aims, and actions of conservationists in West Germany between 1945 and 1975, placing conservation in the mainstream of German political and cultural history…. This fully researched and readable narrative, interspersed with three illustrative case studies, provides an excellent account of conservation in West Germany.” Choice

“Chaney provides a valuable bridge between previous studies of conservation policy in the first half of the twentieth century, including the Third Reich… and provides an important account of the rebirth of the postwar conservation movement that led to the greening of German politics.” German Politics & Society

SALTWATER SOCIALITY
A Melanesian Island Ethnography
Katharina Schneider

"The evocative description and level of scholarship make Schneider’s work a fine example of current ethnography which also provides valuable detail about how ethnographers do their work. This is a highly readable book for those with an interest in the region, a fascination with relatedness, and for anthropologists interested in accessing a written account of how useful ethnographic material might be collected.” JRAI

"This engaging and beautifully written monograph… provides us with wonderful new material from a region that has received relatively little ethnographic interest, especially in the recent ‘post-conflict period’. Schneider’s study is relevant to current Pacific Island studies and makes a contribution to longstanding debates about Melanesian sociality, while addressing themes such as matrilineal kinship, rank, gender and marriage and mortuary rites.” Pacific Affairs

Based on detailed ethnography, this study engages current Melanesian anthropological theory and argues that movements are the Pororans’ predominant mode of objectifying relations. Movements on Pororan Island are to its inhabitants what roads are to ‘mainlanders’ on the nearby larger island, and what material objects and images are to others elsewhere in Melanesia.

Katharina Schneider is Lecturer at the Institute for Ethnology at Heidelberg University.

HUNTERS, PREDATORS AND PREY

Inuit Perceptions of Animals
Frédéric Laugrand and Jarich Oosten

“This is a fascinating contribution to the ethnography of the circumpolar North and the growing literature on human-animal relationships. The authors have assembled a rich and authoritative compendium of Inuit knowledge and tradition aimed at the animals that surround them. Perhaps unique to any other collection it takes local animist categories seriously such that Inuit concepts take a position front and centre before European concepts such as ‘spirit’ or ‘loul’.”

David G. Anderson, University of Aberdeen

Inuit hunting traditions are rich in perceptions, practices and stories relating to animals and human beings. Laugrand and Oosten examine the roles of animals from the small and non-social, such as the raven, to those considered fellow hunters, the bear and the dog. ‘Prey par excellence’, or caribou, seals, and the whale, are discussed in conjunction with the renewal of whale hunting.

Frédéric Laugrand is Professor in the Department of Anthropology, Université Laval and Director of the journal Anthropologie et Sociétés. Jarich Oosten is Emeritus Professor in the Department of Anthropology at Leiden University, The Netherlands.

PLANTS, HEALTH AND HEALING

On the Interface of Ethnobotany and Medical Anthropology
Edited by Elisabeth Hsu and Stephen Harris

“This collection, the sixth in a renowned series in the epistemology of healing, explores how plant knowledge is incorporated into human social life. The collection is unique for its detailed attention to the botany and often pharmaceutical analysis of the plants combined in equal measures with contextualized observations about how these factors are culturally constructed both by laboratory scientists and local communities.”

Social Anthropology/Anthropologie sociale

This volume, which brings together (ethno-)botanists, medical anthropologists and a clinician, emphasises that plant knowledge arises situationally as an intrinsic part of social relationships, that herbs need to be enticed if not seduced by the healers who work with them, that herbal remedies are cultural artefacts, and that bioprospecting and medicinal plant discovery can be viewed as the epitome of a long history of borrowing, stealing and exchanging plants.

Elisabeth Hsu is Professor of Anthropology at the University of Oxford. Stephen Harris has been the Druce Curator of Oxford University Herbaria since 1995.

PASTORALISM IN AFRICA

Past, Present and Future
Edited by Michael Bollig, Michael Schnegg, and Hans-Peter Wotzka

“This new edited volume provides an innovative, empirically driven perspective on controversial facilities that will be of interest to many scholars, decision makers, and residents around the world. The volume’s international perspective helps make its conclusions convincing and robust and it rests on a well-developed set of theories and hypotheses.”

Daniel P. Aldrich, Purdue University

NIMBY (Not In My Back Yard) protests are often criticized as parochial and short-lived, generating no lasting influence on broader processes related to environmental politics. This volume offers a different perspective. Drawing on cases from around the globe, it demonstrates that NIMBY protests, although always arising from a local concern in a particular community, often result in broader political, social, and technological change.

ELUSIVE PROMISES
Planning in the Contemporary World
Edited by Simone Abram and Gisa Weszkalnys

“This is a much needed contribution by anthropologists to a sustained and broad treatment of planning as a socio-cultural process, utilizing multiple case studies from multiple perspectives and theoretical frames. Some very insightful analyses can be found in the chapters, particularly regarding the vast differences between places and people around the world, and their efforts to organize reality through what would commonly, but perhaps inaccurately, be subsumed under the term ‘planning’.”

Juris Milestone, Temple University

The authors, all leading anthropologists, examine the time and space, creativity and agency, authority and responsibility, and conflicting desires that plans attempt to control. They show how the many people involved with planning deal with the discrepancies between what is promised and what is done.

Simone Abram is Reader at both Durham University and Leeds Met University, and has worked in interdisciplinary planning departments at Sheffield and Cardiff Universities. Gisa Weszkalnys is Lecturer in the Department of Anthropology at the London School of Economics.

COLLECTIVE TERMS
Race, Culture, and Community in a State-Planned City in France
Beth S. Epstein

“...a well-written monograph that nicely reveals the dilemmas of community-making in situations where all residents are newcomers, but not all newcomers are equal...there is much to admire and learn from this lucid study, both about the viles nouvelles as particular socio-spatial environments, and about the heavily politicized field of culture talk in France.”

French Politics, Culture, and Society

“Through concrete and compelling examples, Collective Terms cleverly advances our understanding of the challenges faced by both immigrants and French institutions. Furthermore, the author is not afraid to ask the tough yet necessary questions about diversity, immigration, difference, and discrimination, and to bring to light fears of exclusion as well as anti-French feelings.”

Contemporary French Civilization

This study provides an ethnographic account of life in a Parisian banlieue and examines how the residents of this multiethnic city come together to build, define, and put into practice their collective life.

Beth S. Epstein has lived and worked in France as a filmmaker and anthropologist since the early 1990s.

TUFF CITY
Urban Change and Contested Space in Central Naples
Nick Dines

“...a perceptive book and worthwhile read for the true urbanist. It effectively demonstrates, and even showcases, the value of ethnography as a methodology, and any reader would be appreciative of the pointed detail of the archival research. The lessons it offers from Naples on the politics of public space will be of value to anyone studying the contemporary city.”

The AAG Review of Books

This monograph is the first in-depth study of the complex transformations of one of Europe’s most fascinating and misunderstood cities. It represents a new critical approach to the questions of public space, citizenship and urban regeneration as well as a broader methodological critique of how we write about contemporary cities.

Nick Dines lived and worked in Naples for seven years.

BERLIN DIVIDED CITY, 1945-1989
Edited by Philip Broadbent and Sabine Hake

“...eschewing the primacy of political history, the authors provide a nuanced picture of a city that, in many respects, was less divided than the Cold War mindset would have us believe...This interesting volume demonstrates the many ways in which East and West Berlin were mutually influential, and how commonalities extended beyond the division.”

English Historical Review

“...adopting an explicitly interdisciplinary approach, this volume ambitiously aims to offer more than just a cultural history of Cold War Berlin...[Its] mix of spatial and chronological demarcations proves insightful inasmuch as the best essays transgress and even undermine them, in effect articulating one of the editors’ stated emphases: on the continuities of urban culture beyond historical ruptures and spatial divides.”

German History

A great deal of attention continues to focus on Berlin’s cultural and political landscape after the fall of the Berlin Wall, but as yet, no single volume looks at the divided city through an interdisciplinary analysis. This volume examines how the city was conceived, perceived, and represented during the four decades preceding reunification and thereby offers a unique perspective on divided Berlin’s identities.

ANIMISM IN RAINFOREST AND TUNDRA

Personhood, Animals, Plants and Things in Contemporary Amazonia and Siberia

Edited by Marc Brightman, Vanessa Elisa Grotti, and Olga Uльтургашева

Foreword by Stephen Hugh-Jones, Cambridge University

Afterword by Piers Vitebsky, Scott Polar Research Institute, Cambridge University

"This is an extremely interesting collection of papers which takes our understanding of animism forward considerably. Pre-scientific ideas abound in religion. The Bible's focus on sacrifice has roots here, and what is 'idolatry' but nature religion giving human characteristics to divinities and even trees, the 'Asheerah'."

Journal of Beliefs and Values

By exploring the social relations between humans and non-human entities credited with human-like personhood (not only animals and plants, but also 'things' such as artifacts, trade items, or mineral resources) from a comparative perspective, this volume offers valuable insights into the constitutions of humanity and personhood characteristic of the two areas.

Housing and Social Transformations in Globalizing Ecuador

Christien Klaufus

Published in Association with the Centre for Latin American Research and Documentation (CEDLA), Amsterdam

"This is outstanding interdisciplinary scholarship and ethnography at its best... a valuable addition to the literature on housing, poverty, urban studies and city planning as well as to the study of popular aesthetics, architecture, urban anthropology, and sociology." Peter Kellett, University of Newcastle upon Tyne

Exploring the discourses and actions of two contrasting population groups, rarely studied in tandem, within these cities—popular-settlement residents and professionals in the planning and construction sector—this study analyzes how each is involved in house designs and neighborhood consolidation.

Christien Klaufus holds a Masters degree in Architecture and a PhD in Cultural Anthropology.

ENVIRONMENT AND CITIZENSHIP IN LATIN AMERICA

Natures, Subjects and Struggles

Edited by Alex Latta and Hannah Wittman

Published in Association with the Centre for Latin American Research and Documentation (CEDLA), Amsterdam

"This book is a major contribution to our understanding of environmental politics in Latin America. The chapters present a wealth of original research that shows that environmental concerns are part of the daily life of indigenous populations and other grassroots groups. The theoretical frame of environmental citizenship provides a compelling way for thinking about how their environmental demands are closely linked to their national identity, political participation, land and resources.”

Kathryn Hochstetler, University of Waterloo

This volume is the result of a collaborative endeavour to advance debates on environmental citizenship, while simultaneously and systematically addressing broader theoretical and methodological questions related to the particularities of studying environment and citizenship in Latin America. Providing a window onto leading scholarship in the field, the book also sets an ambitious agenda to spark further research.

Alex Latta is an Associate Professor in the Department of Global Studies at Wilfrid Laurier University and in the Balsillie School of International Affairs. Hannah Wittman is an Assistant Professor of Sociology and Associate Member of the Latin American Studies Program at Simon Fraser University.

RETHINKING THE INFORMAL CITY

Critical Perspectives from Latin America

Edited by Felipe Hernández, Peter Kellett and Lea K. Allen

"This anthology represents a huge effort due to the diversity of realities that exist within Latin America. Cities have different dynamics according to their characteristics such as population, economic resources and territory... Therefore, the effort made by the editors to collect a group of professionals and researchers interested in Latin American cities is remarkable and mark this book as an important contribution to the knowledge of informal urban spaces in Latin American cities.”

Urban Studies Journal

This book provides a thorough review of the work that is currently being carried out by scholars, practitioners and governmental institutions, in and outside Latin America, on the question of informal cities.

Felipe Hernández is an Architect and lecturer in architectural design, history and theory at the University of Cambridge. WOMEN AND THE CITY, WOMEN IN THE CITY
A Gendered Perspective to Ottoman Urban History
Edited by Nazan Maksudyan

"All the essays display a very high academic standard and, according to my judgement, they deal with original and hitherto under-researched topics. An additional benefit is that all of them use various original sources in the different languages of the region that have not been made accessible before.”

Florian Riedler, Zentrum Moderner Orient

Accessing court records, state archives, oral sources, literary material, memoirs, and newspapers, the contributors to this volume reconstruct women's lives in the Ottoman Empire, from Aleppo to Sofia, and from Jeddah to Istanbul. The seven chapters offer a wide panorama of the Ottoman urban geography, with a specific concern for gender roles.

Nazan Maksudyan is Assistant Professor of History at the Sociology Department of Istanbul Kemerburgaz University and has held Wissenschaftskolleg and Alexander von Humboldt postdoc positions in Berlin at Zentrum Moderner Orient.

WALLS, BORDERS, BOUNDARIES
Spatial and Cultural Practices in Europe
Edited by Marc Silberman, Karen E. Till, and Janet Ward

“...[the] congregation of interdisciplinary accounts helps [to] demystify the fall of the Berlin Wall, and to destabilise the romanticisation of post-wall era. In a timely way the contributions also highlight the diversity of barriers and boundaries which anchor collective life in a world that sometimes claims for itself a kind of borderless universality. However the collection is at its sharpest when the autonomies of art, of the body, and of the material world are allowed to speak as loudly as persisting cultural and architectural divisions.”

Society and Space – Environment and Planning D

This edited volume explores the crossings, permeations, and constructions of cultural and political borders between peoples and territories, examining how walls, borders, and boundaries signify both interdependence and contact within sites of conflict and separation.

The Case of the Modern Bourgeois Home
Volker M. Welter

“Ernst Freud is not only an important contribution to a revised and more differentiated history of modern Weimar architecture; it also offers an enhanced picture of the early years of psychoanalysis, including the role played by the son of the father of psychoanalysis.”

Journal of the American Psychoanalytic Association

By interweaving an account of Freud’s professional and personal life in Vienna, Berlin, and London with a critical discussion of selected examples of his domestic architecture, interior designs, and psychoanalytic consulting rooms, the author offers a rich tapestry of Ernst L. Freud’s world.
