Geography and Environmental Studies
Fault Lines
Earthquakes and Urbanism in Modern Italy
Giacomo Parrinello

“... an extremely interesting and well-written book, which takes two major Italian disasters in detail and uses them to tell a series of stories about urban change, the state, national identity, and other issues. ... The author is passionate about the subject matter he is dealing with — and the material itself is red hot.”
John Foot, University of Bristol

Although earthquakes can have disastrous effects on human lives and environments, they can also significantly influence urban development. This book follows the history of two Italian seismic disasters — the 1908 Messina earthquake and the 1968 earthquake in the Belice Valley, Sicily — exploring plans preceding the destruction and the urbanism that emerged from the ruins.

Giacomo Parrinello is a Marie Curie Fellow at the Department of Geography and Anthropology at Louisiana State University.

Civilizing Nature
National Parks in Global Historical Perspective
Edited by Bernhard Gissibl, Sabine Höhler and Patrick Kupper

“This book makes a unique contribution to the conservation literature by enhancing one’s understanding and appreciation of the cultural meaning of nature conservation through the lens of national park development. [...] Highly recommended.”
Choice

Shifting the focus from the usual emphasis on national parks in the United States, this volume adopts an historical and transnational perspective on the global geography of protected areas and its changes over time. It focuses especially on the actors, networks, mechanisms, arenas, and institutions responsible for the global spread of the national park and the associated utilization and mobilization of asymmetrical relationships of power and knowledge, contributing to scholarly discussions of globalization and the emergence of global environmental institutions and governance.

Bernhard Gissibl is Postdoctoral Researcher at the Leibniz-Institute of European History in Mainz. Sabine Höhler is Associate Professor of Science and Technology Studies at KTH Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm. Patrick Kupper is Professor of Economic and Social History at the University of Innsbruck.

Rivers, Memory, And Nation-Building
A History of the Volga and Mississippi Rivers
Dorothy Zeisler-Vralsted

“The main themes and insights are strong ones...As well as offering a worthy and inspired comparison, this is a genuine and systematic comparison with a clear structure and steadily building momentum: a good balance is struck between the two rivers and the author frequently alternates between them, but without confusing the reader.”
Peter Coates, The University of Bristol

Rivers figure prominently in a nation’s historical memory, and the Volga and Mississippi have special importance in Russian and American cultures. Despite being forced into submission for modern-day hydrological regimes, the Volga and Mississippi Rivers persist in the collective memory and continue to offer solace, recreation, and sustenance. Through their histories we derive a more nuanced view of human interaction with the environment.

Dorothy Zeisler-Vralsted is Professor of Government and International Affairs at Eastern Washington University.

Creating Wilderness
A Transnational History of the Swiss National Park
Patrick Kupper
Translated from the German by Giselle Weiss

Winner of the Turku Book Prize of the European Society for Environmental History and the Rachel Carson Center for Environment and Society.

“This is environmental history of the first order, ranging widely across geographical scales and historical periods to trace the changing discourses and manifestations of the national park model.”

Andrew Denning, Western Washington University

The history of the Swiss National Park, from its creation in the years before the Great War to the present, is told for the first time in this book. Unlike Yellowstone Park, which embodied close cooperation between state-supported conservation and public recreation, the Swiss park put in place an extraordinarily strong conservation program derived from a close alliance between the state and scientific research.

The Social Life of Water
Edited by John Richard Wagner

“This book fills an important niche on water related issues in anthropology by focusing on social and cultural manifestations of water management, use, and conflict... The organization is appropriate and effective.”

Benedict J. Colombi, American Indian Studies Program, University of Arizona

Relying on first-hand ethnographic research, the contributors to this volume examine the social life of water in diverse settings and explore the impacts of commodification, urbanization, and technology on the availability and quality of water supplies. Each case study speaks to a local set of issues, but the overall perspective is global, with representation from all continents.

Environment and Citizenship in Latin America
Natures, Subjects and Struggles
Edited by Alex Latta and Hannah Wittman

“This book is a major contribution to our understanding of environmental politics in Latin America. The chapters present a wealth of original research that shows that environmental concerns are part of the daily life of indigenous populations and other grassroots groups. The theoretical frame of environmental citizenship provides a compelling way for thinking about how their environmental demands are closely linked to their national identity, political participation, land and resources.”

Kathryn Hochstetler, University of Waterloo

This volume is the result of a collaborative endeavour to advance debates on environmental citizenship, while simultaneously and systematically addressing broader theoretical and methodological questions related to the particularities of studying environment and citizenship in Latin America. Providing a window onto leading scholarship in the field, the book also sets an ambitious agenda to spark further research.

Alex Latta is an Associate Professor in the Department of Global Studies at Wilfrid Laurier University. Hannah Wittman is an Associate Professor in the Faculty of Land and Food Systems and the Institute for Resources, Environment and Sustainability at the University of British Columbia

Waterworlds
Anthropology in Fluid Environments
Edited by Kirsten Hastrup and Frida Hastrup

“A superb book, the chapters provide a wide range of approaches, from excellent descriptive ethnography to hard-hitting critiques of development practice. Water’s qualities provide a common theme and inspire groundbreaking theory.”

Marc Brightman, University College London

In one form or another, water participates in the making and unmaking of people’s lives, practices, and stories. Contributors analyse the union of water and social lives, thereby challenging anthropologists to foreground the mutable character of their subjects and responsibly engage with the generative role of cultural analysis.

Kirsten Hastrup is Professor of Anthropology at University of Copenhagen. Frida Hastrup is Assistant Professor of Ethnology at University of Copenhagen.

Reclaiming the Forest
The Ewenki Reindeer Herders of Aoluguya
Edited by Åshild Kolås and Yuanyuan Xie

“This book is a valuable contribution to the anthropology of northern Eurasian peoples. With contributions by Western and Chinese anthropologists along with contributions by Ewenki reindeer herders themselves, the book is a comprehensive and innovative presentation of the history and lifeways of the Ewenki of Aoluguya.”
John Ziker, Boise State University

The reindeer herders of Aoluguya, China, are a group of former hunters who today see themselves as “keepers of reindeer.” To some, their future seems troubled, but this volume’s literary and academic contributions instead focus on the present, as the Ewenki attempt to reclaim their forest lifestyle and develop new forest livelihoods.

Åshild Kolås is Research Professor at the Peace Research Institute Oslo. Yuanyuan Xie is Lecturer in the Department of Sociology, College of Humanities and Development Studies, China Agricultural University.

About the Hearth
Perspectives on the Home, Hearth and Household in the Circumpolar North
Edited by David G. Anderson, Robert P. Wishart, and Virginie Vaté

“A very exciting book that addresses classical topics of anthropology of the North: housing, hearth and household, with a completely renewed approach. Chapters reconsider central issues in the study of material culture and social organization with a vivid ethnography and a compelling theoretical questioning.”
Charles Stépanoff, Sorbonne

Based on years of in-depth research, this book presents and analyzes how the people of the circumpolar regions conceive, build, memorialize, and live in their dwellings. This book seeks to set a new standard for interdisciplinary work within the humanities and social sciences and includes anthropological work on vernacular architecture, environmental anthropology, household archaeology and demographics.

David G. Anderson is Professor of Anthropology and Chair in Anthropology of the North at the University of Aberdeen. Robert P. Wishart is Lecturer at the University of Aberdeen. Virginie Vaté is an Anthropologist and a Researcher at the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (CNRS) in France.

NIMBY Is Beautiful
Cases of Local Activism and Environmental Innovation Around the World
Edited by Carol Hager and Mary Alice Haddad

“This new edited volume provides an innovative, empirically driven perspective on controversial facilities that will be of interest to many scholars, decision makers, and residents around the world. The volume’s international perspective helps make its conclusions convincing and robust and it rests on a well developed set of theories and hypotheses.”
Daniel P. Aldrich, Purdue University

NIMBY (Not In My Back Yard) protests are often criticized as parochial and short-lived, generating no lasting influence on broader processes related to environmental politics. This volume offers a different perspective. Drawing on cases from around the globe, it demonstrates that NIMBY protests, although always arising from a local concern in a particular community, often result in broader political, social, and technological change.

Hunters, Predators and Prey
Inuit Perceptions of Animals
Frédéric Laugrand and Jarich Oosten

“...the project is worthwhile because it organizes so much data—often older data that anthropologists might not seek out—into one location and adds to our modern disciplinary interest in personhood, bodies in culture, and animals as an inseparable component of human society.”

Anthropology Review Database

Inuit hunting traditions are rich in perceptions, practices and stories relating to animals and human beings. Laugrand and Oosten examine the roles of animals from the small and non-social, such as the raven, to those considered fellow hunters, the bear and the dog. “Prey par excellence,” or caribou, seals, and the whale, are discussed in conjunction with the renewal of whale hunting.

Frédéric Laugrand is Professor in the Department of Anthropology, Université Laval and Director of the journal Anthropologie et Sociétés. Jarich Oosten is Emeritus Professor in the Department of Anthropology at Leiden University, The Netherlands.

Beyond the Lens of Conservation Malagasy and Swiss Imaginations of One Another Eva Keller

“What sets [the book] apart...is the study’s greatest hook: its approach to the obvious connection between ‘Little Masoala’ in Zurich and the real Masoala in Madagascar. Rather than include discussion of the zoo exhibit in a provocative preamble or epilogue, the author considers it with well-deserved seriousness and care, connecting her extensive study of it to that of the Malagasy communities in which she worked.”
Andrew Walsh, University of Western Ontario

This ethnography examines how the cooperation between a national park in Madagascar and a Swiss zoo is perceived by ordinary people at either end. One view focuses on power and history, the other on morality and progress. Nature conservation therefore widens the gap between people in the North and South.

Eva Keller has been carrying out anthropological research in Madagascar since 1998 and is currently a Research Fellow at the Department of Social Anthropology at the University of Zurich.

Environmental Anthropology Engaging Ecotopia Bioregionalism, Permaculture, and Ecovillages Edited by Joshua Lockyer and James R. Veteto

“The contributors look beyond techno-fixes to ask deep questions about underlying cultural ontologies that... will undoubtedly resonate with and inspire students; [this volume] is highly recommended for use in both undergraduate and graduate courses in anthropology and environmental studies.”

Culture, Agriculture, Food and Environment

The authors here argue for re-orienting environmental anthropology from a problem-oriented towards a solutions-focused endeavor. The contributors—scholar-activists and activist-practitioners—examine the interrelationships between three prominent environmental social movements: bioregionalism, a worldview and political ecology that grounds environmental action and experience; permaculture, a design science for putting the bioregional vision into action; and ecovillages, the ever-dynamic settings for creating sustainable local cultures.

Joshua Lockyer is Assistant Professor of Anthropology at Arkansas Tech University. James R. Veteto is Assistant Professor and faculty member of the Cherokee Studies Program in the Department of Anthropology and Sociology at Western Carolina University.

Sustainable Development An Appraisal from the Gulf Region Edited by Paul Sillitoe

“This volume] amounts to a well edited, comprehensive, collection of sustainable development papers, strongly introduced and concluded by the editor, on a region that surely no one could doubt can only gain from the salutary environmental analysis time after time it offers.”
Raymond Apthorpe, SOAS University of London

With growing evidence of unsustainable use of the world’s resources, such as hydrocarbon reserves, and related environmental pollution, as in alarming climate change predictions, sustainable development is arguably the prominent issue of the 21st century. Bringing together university faculty and government personnel from the Gulf, Europe, and North America this volume gives a wide ranging introduction focusing on the and Gulf region and beyond, where the challenges of sustainable development are starkly evident.

Paul Sillitoe FBA is Professor of Anthropology at Durham University.

Landscapes Beyond Land Routes, Aesthetics, Narratives Edited by Arnar Árnason, Nicolas Ellison, Jo Vergunst and Andrew Whitehouse

“This thoughtful collection of essays on landscapes is largely inspired by the recent writings of Chris Tilley and Tim Ingold, whose own contributions bookend the other papers in the volume... What this volume does is open up some space for further imaginative wanderings and questions about the precise manner in which both residents and scholars are socially disciplined or culturally conditioned to read different landscapes.”

The Australian Journal of Anthropology

The contributors explore how landscapes become known primarily through movement and journeying rather than stasis. Working across four continents, they explain how landscapes are constituted and recollected in the stories people tell of their journeys through them, and how, in turn, these stories are embedded in landscaped forms.

Arnar Árnason is Senior Lecturer in Social Anthropology at the University of Aberdeen. Nicolas Ellison is Lecturer in Social Anthropology at the École des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales (Toulouse). Jo Vergunst is Lecturer in Social Anthropology in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Aberdeen. Andrew Whitehouse is a Teaching Fellow in Anthropology at the University of Aberdeen.

Narrating the City
Histories, Space and the Everyday
Edited by Wladimir Fischer-Nebmaier, Matthew P. Berg, and Anastasia Christou

“This is an extremely solid and well-informed collection that brings together pertinent and timely case studies that all shed light on the interconnections between the everyday and urban narratives. The scope is expansive and interdisciplinary, and the framework is explained well and in detail.”
Markus Reisenleitner, York University

With a focus on new research, this book explores the history of non-elite populations in cities from Caracas to Vienna, and Paris to Belgrade. Contributors’ research both asks classical socio-historical questions and takes narration seriously, engaging with novels, films, local history accounts, petitions to municipal authorities, and interviews with alternative cinema activists.

Wladimir Fischer-Nebmaier is Research Project Leader in the Department of History at the University of Vienna. Matthew P. Berg is Professor of History at John Carroll University. Urban Violence in the Middle East
Changing Cityscapes in the Transition from Empire to Nation State
Edited by Ulrike Freitag, Nelida Fuccaro, Claudia Ghrawi, and Nora Lafi

“This is a very remarkable collection of chapters . . . The totality is a lively read, exhibiting an almost universal familiarity with and appreciation of the literature.”
Peter Sluglett, National University of Singapore

This volume explores the phenomenon of urban violence in order to unveil general developments and historical specificities in a variety of Middle Eastern contexts. The case studies counter notions of a violent Middle East to foster a new understanding of violent behavior in this region.

Ulrike Freitag is a Historian of the Modern Middle East with a special interest in Urban History and the Arabian Peninsula in its global context. Post-Cosmopolitan Cities
Explorations of Urban Coexistence
Edited by Caroline Humphrey and Vera Skvirskaja

“In their new book, Caroline Humphrey and Vera Skvirskaja have excelled in building a ...magnificent world of cultural identities without ends. The authors and editors offer a compelling exploration of the multilayered ideas about what makes “us” and “them” in six cities: Odessa, Tbilisi, Warsaw, Venice, Thessalonica, and Dushanbe... Humphrey and Skvirskaja take the deeper, anthropological, microscopic view of the everyday experiences of people. And in this they do an excellent job.”
Slavic Review

Examining the way people imagine and interact in their cities, this book explores the post-cosmopolitan city. The contributors consider the effects of migration, national, and religious revivals (with their new aesthetic sensibilities), the dispositions of marginalized economic actors, and globalized tourism on urban sociality.

Bloom and Bust
Urban Landscapes in the East since German Reunification
Edited by Gwyneth Cliver and Carrie Smith-Prei

“I think the premise of the collection is a promising one, to shift focus from the Berlin-centric approaches to the relationship between the past and urban space, towards the areas of Eastern Germany that are frequently overlooked ... the book forms a useful complement to other studies of the cityscape in the post-unification period.”
Simon Ward, University of Aberdeen

This volume considers the changing urban landscapes in the former East — and how the filling of previous absences and the absence of previous presence — creates the cultural landscape of modern unified Germany. This broadens our understanding of this transformation by examining often-neglected cities, spaces, or structures, and historical narration and preservation.

The Great Reimagining
Public Art, Urban Space, and the Symbolic Landscapes of a ‘New’ Northern Ireland
Bree T. Hocking

“This is a timely, relevant and thorough examination of how urban space is constructed and contested in ‘post-conflict’ Northern Ireland. Hocking shows through deft engagement with ethnographic and documentary material how post-Good Friday Agreement policy has been dominated by attempts to create spaces that are amenable to tourists and capital, but also the limits of such initiatives in a context where ethno-national division remains a salient feature of everyday life for many.”
Peter Geoghegan, University of Edinburgh

Offering a detailed ethnographic account of Northern Ireland’s post-conflict visual transformation, this book examines the official effort to produce new civic images against a backdrop of ongoing political and social struggle.

Walls, Borders, Boundaries
Spatial and Cultural Practices in Europe
Edited by Marc Silberman, Karen E. Till, and Janet Ward

“The individual contributions are almost invariably of a high standard and will be of interest not only to researchers but also to students in a range of fields, including contemporary German history, European Studies, political geography, and border studies. The contributions are well written, and the volume as a whole is well edited and includes numerous illuminating images.”
Central European History

This edited volume explores the crossings, permeations, and constructions of cultural and political borders between peoples and territories, examining how walls, borders, and boundaries signify both interdependence and contact within sites of conflict and separation.

At Home in Postwar France
Modern Mass Housing and the Right to Comfort
Nicole C. Rudolph

“The vast amount of information, the coherence of the narrative, the elegance of the writing, the soundness of [Rudolph’s] judgments, and the significance of her story to our understanding of France’s ‘trentes glorieuses’ suggest that this will be a book that will make a difference to people’s thinking about the era.”

Steven Zdatny, University of Vermont

After World War II, France embarked on a national project of modernization, which included the development of mass housing. At Home in Postwar France reveals how modernizers saw the home as a site for social engineering and nation-building, and identifies the emergence of a “right to comfort” that shaped new expectations for well-being.

Street Vending in the Neoliberal City
A Global Perspective on the Practices and Policies of a Marginalized Economy
Edited by Kristina Graaff and Noa Ha

“Overall, this is an excellent book. The collection of essays the editors have brought together is quite impressive . . . The quality is consistently high, and the originality and richness of the writing is very compelling.”

Jonathan Shapiro Anjaria, Brandeis University

From a multifaceted, global, and transnational perspective, the volume examines street vending and urban policies around the globe, comparing practices in the Global South to that in the Northern hemisphere. Essays show that though street vending activities vary depending on site-specific regulations, this urban practice also reveals global ties and developments.

Housing and Belonging in Latin America
Edited by Christien Klaufus and Arij Ouweneel

The intricacies of living in contemporary Latin American cities include cases of both empowerment and restriction. In Lima, residents built their own homes and formed community organizations, while in Rio de Janeiro inhabitants of the favelas needed to be “pacified” in anticipation of international sporting events. Aspirations to “get ahead in life” abound in the region, but so do multiple limitations to realizing the dream of upward mobility. This volume captures the paradoxical histories and experiences of urban life in Latin America, offering new empirical and theoretical insights to scholars.

Tuff City
Urban Change and Contested Space in Central Naples
Nick Dines

“Nick Dines draws on over a decade of intensive interdisciplinary research—history, politics, cultural studies, social geography, and anthropology—...[and] does a fine job of weaving together the competing narratives to offer a penetrating analysis of the contestation over public space embedded in discourses about civility and citizenship. He...also addresses global questions about citizenship, urban renewal, the inequality of zoning, and the securitization of public space. As such, this book could serve as a model for the analysis, critique, and comparison of other urban renewal projects in cities around the global north because Dines methodically and subtly makes the local speak to global questions.”
American Anthropologist

This monograph is the first in-depth study of the complex transformations of one of Europe’s most fascinating and misunderstood cities. It represents a new critical approach to the questions of public space, citizenship and urban regeneration as well as a broader methodological critique of how we write about contemporary cities.

Yearnings in the Meantime
‘Normal Lives’ and the State in a Sarajevo Apartment Complex
Stef Jansen

“Through a focus on the everyday yearnings of ordinary residents of the Sarajevo peripheral neighborhood Dobrinja for what they call ‘normal lives,’ Stef Jansen tackles some of the most timely political and academic questions that revolve around people’s relationships to the state and thinking about the future.”

Elissa Helms, Central European University

An ethnographic account, this book looks into a Sarajevo apartment building as its inhabitants yearn for “normal lives,” over a decade after the war and the disintegration of Socialist Yugoslavia. Starting from everyday concerns, it freshly explores how the time and place in which we are caught shape our hopes and fears.

Faithfully Urban
Pious Muslims in a German City
Petra Kuppinger

“The author successfully presents an approach that differs from most studies on Muslims in Germany or Western Europe and is certainly providing an important contribution to the study of Islam in Europe in general and to the urban Muslim presence in particular.”

Riem Spielhaus, Friedrich-Alexander-University, Erlangen-Nuremberg

A pious Muslim population lives in the southern German city of Stuttgart, where, even in the face of resentment and discrimination, they create meaningful lives. The author introduces and examines the lives of these individuals and communities, set within a city that accommodates the needs and sensibilities of both Muslims and non-Muslims.

Editors: Sing C. Chew, Humboldt State University, USA, and Helmholtz Centre for Environmental Research - UFZ and Matthias Gross, Helmholtz Centre for Environmental Research - UFZ and University of Jena, Germany

Nature and Culture is a forum for the international community of scholars and practitioners to present, discuss, and evaluate critical issues and themes related to the historical and contemporary relationships that societies, civilizations, empires, regions, nation-states have with Nature. The journal contains a serious interpolation of theory, methodology, criticism, and concrete observation forming the basis of this discussion.

ISSN: 1558-6073 (Print) • ISSN: 1558-5468 (Online)

Regions and Cohesion
Regiones y Cohesión / Régions et Cohésion
Editors: Harlan Koff and Carmen Maganda, both of the RISC Consortium

The journal of the Consortium for Comparative Research on Regional Integration and Social Cohesion (RISC), a cross-regional, interdisciplinary, and multi-lingual network of socially conscious and prestigious research institutes in Europe, North America, South America and Africa.

Regions and Cohesion is a needed platform for academics and practitioners alike to disseminate both empirical research and normative analysis of topics related to human and environmental security, social cohesion, and governance.

ISSN: 2152-906X (Print) • ISSN: 2152-9078 (Online)

Transfers
Interdisciplinary Journal of Mobility Studies
Chief Editor: Gijs Mom, Eindhoven University of Technology

Transfers publishes cutting-edge research on the processes, structures, and consequences of the movement of people, resources, and commodities. Intellectually rigorous, broadly ranging, and conceptually innovative, the journal combines the empiricism of traditional mobility history with more recent methodological approaches from the social sciences and the humanities.

ISSN: 2045-4813 (Print) • ISSN: 2045-4821 (Online)

Focaal
Journal of Global and Historical Anthropology
Editors: Don Kaib, Central European University and Utrecht University, Christopher Kruza, University of Toronto, Mathijs Pelkmans, London School of Economics, Oscar Salemk, University of Copenhagen, Gavin Smith, University of Toronto, Oane Visser, Institute of Social Studies, The Hague, Managing Editor: Luisa Steur, University of Copenhagen

Focaal is a peer-reviewed journal advocating an approach that rests in the simultaneity of ethnography, processual analysis, local insights, and global vision. It is at the heart of debates on the ongoing conjunction of anthropology and history as well as the incorporation of local research settings in the wider spatial networks of coercion, imagination, and exchange that are often glossed as ‘globalization’ or ‘empire’.

ISSN: 0920-1297 (Print) • ISSN: 1558-5263 (Online)

International Journal of Social Quality
Editor: Ka Lin, Zhejiang University

Published in partnership with Zhejiang University and the International Association of Social Quality

The International Journal of Social Quality is a peer reviewed, scholarly journal which has a primary focus on the interpretation of social quality through a wide range of disciplines, including social policy, economics, sociology, law and legal studies, philosophy, political science, geography, health sciences, and public administration.

ISSN: 1757-0344 (Print) • ISSN: 1757-0352 (Online)

Sibirica
Interdisciplinary Journal of Siberian Studies
Editor: John P. Ziker, Boise State University

Sibirica is a peer-reviewed interdisciplinary journal covering all aspects of the region and relations to neighboring areas, such as Central Asia, East Asia, and North America.

The journal publishes articles, research reports, conference and book reviews on history, politics, economics, geography, cultural studies, anthropology, and environmental studies.
