Providing an introduction to the development and the ideas of Françoise Héritier, this book looks at the woman who succeeded Claude Lévi-Strauss as the Chair of Social Anthropology at the Collège de France. The book examines certain key structuralist concepts which she formed during some tumultuous world events, such as the independence of African States, the Aids crisis, of which she was the president of the national committee on Aids, and the collapse of the Soviet Union.

"This is a beautifully written and evocative portrait of an anthropologist’s long-term interests in Nigerian writing and writers, with a focus on Nigeria’s engagements with the wider world. The author’s rich storytelling combines narratives of fieldwork, historical background, erudite scholarship, and analyses of the texts considered... This book takes literary anthropology to new heights." · Deborah Reed-Danahay, University of Buffalo

Civil Society Revisited
Lessons from Poland
Edited by Kerstin Jacobsson, University of Gothenburg and Elżbieta Korolczuk, Södertörn University, Sweden

“Empirically grounded, methodologically plural, gender aware, theoretically rich, and sufficiently provocative, the editors of this volume have assembled interpretations of Polish civil society that ought not only draw in those dedicated to Polish scholarship. This volume needs to be engaged by everyone who wants to appreciate how social science matters in figuring social change.” · Slavic Review

Waiting for Elijah
Time and Encounter in a Bosnian Landscape
Safet HadžiMuhamedović, University of Cambridge

“Waiting for Elijah is a forceful, poignant, and illuminating intervention... profoundly a book about home. [It] could join other anthropological classics that deal with people’s attachment to their landscapes... HadžiMuhamedović is quite aware of the tension this produces. It is obvious that he has to answer both the call of a poet and that of a scholar.” · Anthropos

Nourishing the Nation
Food as National Identity in Catalonia
Venetia Johannes, University of Oxford

“This is an excellent piece of work on Catalan gastronationalism as lived reality. It is written well and very readable – not a dry academic monograph but a vivid depiction of how people live ‘food’ in today’s Catalonia.” · Atsuko Ichijo, Kingston University

A Goddess in Motion
Visual Creativity in the Cult of María Lionza
Roger Canals, University of Barcelona

“Throughout the book, the writing is clear and straightforward. In his discussions of theoretical works on images and visuality, Canals adopts a patient, explanatory tone, which makes this book ideal for teaching on visual anthropology courses at undergraduate and postgraduate levels, especially if combined with the ethnographic films and website that he has also produced on the subject...” · Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute

Indigenous Resurgence
Decolonialization and Movements for Environmental Justice
Edited by Jaskiran Dhillon, The New School

Indigenous peoples around the world are standing up and speaking out against global capitalism to protect the land, water, and air. By placing Indigenous politics, histories, and ontologies at the center of our social movements for environmental justice, Indigenous Resurgence positions environmental justice within historical, social, political, and economic contexts.

Embers of Empire: Continuity and Rupture in the Habsburg Successor States after 1918
Edited by Paul Miller, McDaniel College in Maryland and Claire Morelon, University of Padova
Afterword by Pieter Judson

“Scholars of the late years of the empire and the transitions after its dissolution will undoubtedly find it a valuable resource, and I would not limit my recommendation just to historians. Anyone who studies Central European culture in the first half of the twentieth century may find something useful in this book.” · Journal of Austrian Studies

Medieval Intersections: Gender and Status in Europe in the Middle Ages
Edited by Katherine Weikert, University of Winchester and Elena Woodacre, University of Winchester

With contributions on topics ranging from medieval gynecology to clerical masculinity, this interdisciplinary collection highlights the various ways “status” can be interpreted relative to gender, and what these two interlocked concepts can reveal about the construction of gendered identities in the Middle Ages.

Tropics of Vienna: Colonial Utopias of the Habsburg Empire
Ulrich E. Bach, Texas State University

“Bach’s book both insightful and accessible... his study breaks some important new ground, if not on the utopian genre, then certainly on the history and literary legacy of the late Habsburg Empire. His work will thus appeal beyond the circle of literary scholarship, and will be of interest to historians, geographers, and area studies scholars concerned with Central Europe during the critical and ever-fascinating fin de siècle.” · International Social Science Review

The Indoctrination of the Wehrmacht
Nazi Ideology and the War Crimes of the German Military
Bryce Sait, Cambridge University

“This is an important book, one that provides a clear and compelling narrative for readers interested in how the Wehrmacht evolved into a willing tool of the Führer. While it relies heavily on the findings of previous research, Sait’s approach effectively situates these findings within the context of the Wehrmacht’s institutional culture dating back to the beginnings of the Nazi regime.”

Lobbying Hitler
Industrial Associations between Democracy and Dictatorship
Matt Bera, York University

From 1933-45, Nazi Germany undertook massive industrial integration, submitting an entire economic sector to direct state oversight. This innovative study explores how German professionals navigated this complex landscape through the divergent careers of business managers in two of the era’s most important trade organizations.
