Max Gluckman

Hugh Macmillan

"The reader will learn a lot about Max Gluckman from this short monograph ... The author goes into a great deal of detail about several central topics ... and hits the highlights of his imposing career." • Herbert Lewis, University of Wisconsin-Madison

This handy, concise biography describes the life and intellectual contribution of Max Gluckman (1911-75) who was one of the most significant social anthropologists of the twentieth century.

Max Gluckman was the founder in the 1950s of the Manchester School of Social Anthropology. He did fieldwork among the Zulu of South Africa in the 1930s and the Lozi of Northern Rhodesia/Zambia in the 1940s. This book describes in detail his academic career and the lasting influence of his Analysis of A Social Situation in Modern Zululand (1940-42) and of his two large monographs on the legal system of the Lozi.

From the Introduction:

Max Gluckman was the most influential of a group of social anthropologists who emerged from South Africa during the 1930s into what was essentially a new academic discipline. His description and analysis of events in real time implied a rejection of contemporary social anthropological practice, of the 'ethnographic present', and of hypothetical or conjectural reconstructions and an acceptance of the need to study 'primitive' societies in the context of the modern world.

Crypto Crowds

Singularities and Multiplicities on the Blockchain

Edited by Matan Shapiro, King's College London

Discussing the notions around social dynamics, Crypto Crowds explores how crowd and community formations manifest empirically in cryptocurrency sociality online. Pioneering in its approach to the increasing digitalization and datafication of everyday life, the volume encourages scholars explore further how 'decentralized' and 'trustless' technologies take part in the construction of postmodern crowds.

Anthropology and Ethnography are Not Equivalent

Reorienting Anthropology for the Future

Edited by Irfan Ahmad, Max Planck Institute

Afterword by Tim Ingold

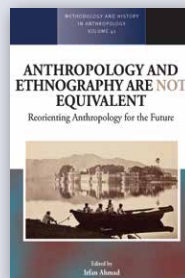

Tim Ingold has raised many questions which are crucial for anthropology as a discipline, such as whether ethnography is central to the subject, and how imagination, reality and truth are joined in anthropological enterprises. His interventions have impacted anthropologists and scholars at large. This volume contributes to the debate about the interrelationships between ethnography and anthropology and takes it to a new plane.

Ethnography in the Raw Life in a Luzon Village

Brian Moeran

Ethnography in the Raw describes the author's encounters with a Philippine family into which he has married, his wife's friends and acquaintances, and their lives in a remote rural village in the rice basin of Luzon, about 130 miles north east of Manila. It is both anthropological fieldwork 'in the raw,' and an incisive analysis of contemporary Philippine society and culture.

The Pursuit of Pleasurable Work Craftwork in Twenty-First Century England

Trevor H. J. Marchand, SOAS, University of London

"I can imagine the book becoming required reading as part of curricula on the anthropology of education, the anthropology of work, and... in the education sciences." · Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute

Against the backdrop of an alienating, technologizing and ever-accelerating world of material production, this book tells an intimate story: one about a community of woodworkers training at an historic institution in London's East End during the present 'renaissance of craftsmanship'.

A Taste for Oppression A Political Ethnography of Everyday Life in Belarus

Ronan Hervouet, University of Bordeaux

The author, who has lived in Belarus for several years, highlights several mechanisms of tyranny, beyond the regime's ability to control and repress, which should not be underestimated. The book sheds light on the reasons why part of the population supports Alexander Lukashenko and takes a fresh look at the functioning of what has been called 'the last dictatorship in Europe'.

Immigrant Industry Building Postwar Australia

Edited by Anoma Pieris, University of Melbourne,
Mirjana Lozanovska, Deakin University, Alexandra
Dellios, Australian National University, Andrew
Saniga, University of Melbourne, David Beynon,
University of Tasmania, and Renee Miller-Yeaman,
University of Melbourne.

Migrants after World War II were critical to the spatial making of modern Australia. Major federally funded industries driving post-war nation-building programs depended on the employment of large numbers of war displaced persons. This book aims to bring to the foreground post-war industry and immigration to comprehensively document a uniquely Australian shaping of the built environment.

Blurring Timescapes,
Subverting Erasure
Remembering Ghosts on the Margins of History

Edited by Sarah Surface-Evans, Central Michigan University, Amanda E. Garrison, Central Michigan University, and Kisha Supernant, University of Alberta

Drawing on archaeological, historical, and ethnographic data, Blurring Timescapes, Subverting Erasure demonstrates the value of conceiving of ghosts not just as metaphors, but as mechanisms for making the past more concrete and allowing the negative specters of enduring historical legacies, such as colonialism and capitalism, to be exorcised.

An American Icon in Puerto Rico Barbie, Girlhood, and Colonialism at Play

Emily R. Aguiló-Pérez, West Chester University of Pennsylvania

In this study, author Emily R. Aguiló-Pérez focuses on a group of multigenerational Puerto Rican women and girls, exploring how playing with Barbie dolls as children has impacted their lives. By documenting the often-complicated relationships girls have with Barbie dolls, Aguiló-Pérez highlights the ways through which women and girls construct their own identities in relation to femininity, body image, race, and nationalism through Barbie play.
