Zora Neale Hurston

Ana Gretel Echazú Böschmeier and Peti Mama Gomes

"This book offers an insightful and innovative approach to Hurston's oeuvre. By applying a transatlantic and decolonial reflexivity, it sheds new light on Hurston's work through a Black feminist lens from the Global South." • Gabriel Chagas, University of Miami

Ibn Khaldun

Lawrence Rosen

Ibn Khaldun's theory of history, economics, and group cohesion has influenced thinkers far beyond his North African homeland. His holistic approach foreshadowed modern social science, blending direct observation with cultural interpretation. A vital precursor to contemporary anthropology, his insights on solidarity, religion, and society remain relevant today.

Sex, Risk, and Society

When Is Sex Dangerous?

Sarah H. Pollock

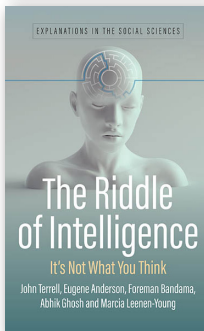

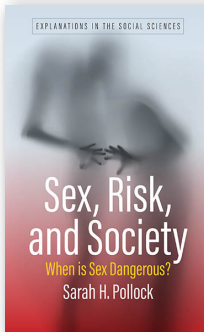

"The question itself is a provocative one that reminds us of how much sex is the focus of one method of problematizing or another and that problematizing plus the real problems get intermixed. This book tries to sort those out." • Virginia Rutter, Framingham State University

New in Paperback An Archaeology of Unchecked Capitalism

Paul A. Shackel

"This is a magnificent book and deserves to be widely read. At a time when many people around the world are losing faith in politicians and American global leadership it illustrates how historical archaeology can connect past and present and reveals how the 'slow violence' of industrial capitalism has devastated landscapes and continues to blight the lives of transgenerational global communities." • James Symonds, University of Amsterdam

New in Paperback Kharkov/Kharkiv

A Borderland Capital
Volodymyr Kravchenko

"Kharkov/Kharkiv deals with exceptionally important and politically and culturally contested questions of regionalism in Eastern Europe and provides unique insight into the history of Ukraine and to a lesser degree Russia...I know no other author who could write with such authority, depth and nuance a history of the region which was always difficult to "capture" and explain within the limits of existing national narratives" • Serhii Plokhii, Harvard University

New in Paperback A Dramatic Reinvention

German Television and Moral Renewal after National Socialism, 1956-1970
Stewart Anderson

"Stewart Anderson paints an evidence-based, richly textured, eminently readable account of the post-fascist establishment of television in Germany... It is welcome for its addition to a still meager body of scholarship on German television in English, and it provides a solid historical basis for further investigations and scholarly engagement with television's critical contribution to national identity formation."

Migration and Welfare Austerity

Mobilizing Kinship for Care, Welfare and Development in Kyrgyzstan
Aksana Ismailbekova

Migration is destructive to the nuclear family and wider village life, but it provides an opportunity for lineages to be mobilized for collective social action that is both local and translocal. This book aims to share experiences of people in Alma, a village in Kyrgyzstan, and how they created a 'moral economy of migration' that became territorialised as kinship was de-territorialised.

Nothing Without Tourism

Local Dependency, Time and Nativism in the Swiss Alps
Danaé Leitenberg

In the era of the Anthropocene, tourism represents both the threats of ruthless capitalism and the ideals of a good life. Nothing Without Tourism explores this paradox from the perspective of those who depend on tourism in the Swiss Alps, as they reflect on a long history of 'touristification' and face an uncertain future.

A Border Island on the Crossroads of History

Lampedusa and the Mediterranean
Dionigi Albera

For several centuries, Lampedusa has been an uninhabited land at the frontier of two conflicting worlds: between Africa and Europe and between Christianity and Islam. This book follows an ethnographic account of the social life on this small island, exploring its history articulated with the present where thousands of migrants and tourists cohabit both well and poorly in a few square miles.

The Spectral Within

Fascism, New Towns and their Contemporary Lives
Elena Miliadić

"This is a well-written book which deals with a little known but quite intriguing history of the Italian town of Latina. It is both a classic European ethnography in the mould of the greats of bygone years (such as John Davis) and a contemporary, even future-oriented take on temporality, absence and existentialism." • Daniel M. Everyday Invisibility

The Lives of African Women in Greece
Viki Zaphiriou-Zarifi

In the wake of Greece's 2008 economic collapse, African women in Athens navigated intensified discrimination shaped by the intersecting forces of gender, race and migration status. This book argues that gendered racialization renders these women not only invisible but also hyper-visible in stereotypical ways that heighten their exposure to discrimination and precarity.

Towards an Anthropology of Psychology

Ethnographic Studies of Psychological Healthcare
Edited by Mikkel Kenni Bruun and Rebecca Hutten

"This is a fascinating volume with an important agenda: to understand, ethnographically, the powerful hold that concepts and practices of 'psychology' have come to exert on our lives. Refreshing in its focus on non-biomedical psychologies and psychotherapies, and with case studies drawn from across Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America, it should be essential reading for all anthropologists of contemporary selfhood." • Nicholas J. Working the Dutch Asylum Apparatus

An Ethnography of Suspicious Compassion and State Power
Maja Hertoghs

Dutch asylum procedure is a peculiar legal procedure that gathers different people and sensitivities together to make swift, life-altering decisions for those applying for protection. Based on an extensive ethnography, this book examines how the Netherlands engages with asylum procedure and the ways in which suspicious compassion pervades an objective decision-making practice.

Anthropology

Embracing Change in Coastal Sri Lanka

Local Strategies in a Global Context
R.L. Stirrat

Prioritising processes not structures based on the general premise that change rather than stasis is what characterises society, this book focuses on social change in a coastal village in Sri Lanka where change was the result of people reacting to processes at work in the wider economic and political context and were in no way passive victims to forces out of their control.

"This is an interesting and topical book written by one of the foremost experts on Sri Lanka in the western world. It is one of the very few anthropological texts on Sri Lanka that I know of which creatively blends the local and the global in the narrative while at the same time authoritatively linking the past with the present." • Sasanka Perera, Colombo Institute

Indigenous Experiences with Collaborative Governance

Moving Toward Equitable Partnerships
Edited by Michèle Companion and Jason D. Rivera

This volume highlights the importance of authentic Indigenous inclusion in governance processes at national and subnational levels worldwide. Through case studies and best-practice models, it examines the opportunities and barriers Indigenous peoples face in collaborative governance. In doing so, it offers recommendations for practice and policy that promote social equity.

"The book offers a valuable contribution to our collective understanding of the impact of structural violence and colonialism on Indigenous Peoples ... All chapters are well-written, informative, and insightful." • Duane A. Gill, Virginia Tech

Border Straddling Heritages

Containment, Contestation, and Appreciation of Shared Pasts
Edited by Ali Mozaffari and David Harvey

In this geographically wide-ranging reassessment of the overlap between borders and heritage, Ali Mozaffari and David C. Harvey interrogate how "hyperglobalization" has simultaneously challenged and intensified notions of sovereignty and nationality, advancing a theory of heritage that recognizes its potential for simultaneously reflecting upon and generating borders.

Capturing Commemoration

Reflections on the First World War Centenary in Britain
Lucy Noakes, Catriona Pennell, Emma Hanna, Lorna Hughes, Chris Kempshall and James Wallis

"[This book] provides insight and analysis of the centenary of the First World War in Britain. It assesses in detail the way in which opinions in the sphere of politics, media, heritage and within the public converged to shape how the centenary was perceived and significantly felt, and is distinctive in its offer of scale in its assessment." • Ross Wilson, University of Nottingham

The First World War Centenary of 2014-2018 was a defining period of public engagement in the United Kingdom. Capturing Commemoration provides the first dedicated examination of this period and the activities that marked it. Collaboratively written by leading experts in the field, this study explores how the Centenary was marked as both a national and a transnational commemoration, how it defined national identity, as well as how it was transmitted within museum exhibitions, digital spaces, and amongst younger generations. In doing so, this volume reflects on the 'collaborative turn' taking place within public history, and its implications for cooperation between the academy and the public.

Museum Times

Changing Histories in South Africa
Leslie Witz

"Museum Times is an important addition to the study of museums in South Africa. It offers the first sweeping assessment of museums, twenty years after apartheid's end. Comical Modernity

Popular Humour and the Transformation of Urban Space in Late Nineteenth Century Vienna
Heidi Hakkarainen

"This book makes an important contribution by demonstrating the deep roots of Vienna's modernist culture beyond the elite traditions that have received the most attention. The analysis of humor journals' female readership—through their pseudonymous participation in readers' columns—is especially valuable. Hakkarainen's study will interest gender, Habsburg, Jewish, and urban historians, as well as scholars of Vienna more generally." • Central European History

Though long associated with a small group of coffeehouse elites around the turn of the twentieth century, Viennese "modernist" culture had roots that reached much further back and beyond the rarified sphere of high culture. In Comical Modernity, Heidi Hakkarainen looks at Vienna in the second half of the nineteenth century, a period of dramatic urban renewal during which the city's rapidly changing face was a mainstay of humorous magazines, books, and other publications aimed at middle-class audiences. As she shows, humor provided a widely accessible means of negotiating an era of radical change.

More than Mere Spectacle

Coronations and Inaugurations in the Habsburg Monarchy during the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries

Edited by Klaas Van Gelder
Afterword by Helen Watanabe-O'Kelly

More than Mere Spectacle brings together new research on eighteenth- and nineteenth-century Habsburg coronations and inaugurations, examining why they persisted, what political, legal, social, and cultural significance they held, and how they adapted to circumstances. It highlights the flexibility of their format as key to their lasting relevance.

The Candle and the Guillotine

Revolution and Justice in Lyon, 1789-93

Julie Patricia Johnson

One of the most tragic episodes of the French Revolution was the 1793 civil war in Lyon and the sweeping repression imposed by Jacobin revolutionaries. The loss of life scarred the city for generations. By focusing on a key rebel, Judge Jean-Jacques Ampère, Julie Johnson shows how rival conceptions of politics and justice fatally divided radical and moderate revolutionaries." • Peter McPhee, University of Melbourne

Minority Discourses in Germany since 1990

Edited by Ela Gezen, Priscilla Layne and Jonathan Skolnik

Minorities and Minority Discourse in Germany since 1990 opens the question of why ethnic minorities in Germany are often discussed in isolation. Whereas most studies examine Black Germans, Jews in Germany, or Turkish Germans on their own terms vis-à-vis the majority German society, this volume takes on unique and comparative perspectives on an increasingly complex German society.

Planning Labour

Time and the Foundations of Industrial Socialism in Romania
Alina-Sandra Cucu Foreword by Don Kalb

"An important addition to the history and understanding of socialist transformation. Alina-Sandra Cucu covers in much detail territories that have been largely excluded from the literature of the socialist transformation of Romania, if not Eastern Europe itself."

• David A. Kideckel, Central Connecticut State University

"...a path-breaking study in the making of communism in Eastern Europe after the end of the Second World War ... a highly innovative re-reading of the socialist transformation in Romania between 1945 and 1955... The stories that Cucu tells of industrial workers are incredibly rich and capture their life-worlds with a clarity that is truly insightful."

It is social history from below at its very best." • Moving the Social:

Reparative Citizenship for Sephardi Descendants

Returning to the Jewish Past in Spain and Portugal
Edited by Dalia Kandiyoti and Rina Benmayor

"Reparative Citizenship for Sephardi Descendants is a thorough, thoughtful, and empathetic exploration of the many issues that surround the 2015 Spanish and Portuguese nationality laws and the choice, on the part of individual Jews of Sephardi descent and conversos, to pursue (or eschew) this option. In this fascinating and compelling collection, editors Kandiyoti and Benmayor have gathered an astonishing range of perspectives on the historical, emotive, sociological, and political dynamics that underlie the Sephardi quest for "reparative citizenship."" • Sarah Abrevaya Stein, UCLA

Feelings Materialized

Emotions, Bodies, and Things in Germany, 1500-1950
Edited by Derek Hillard, Heikki Lempa, and Russell Spinney

"This book offers valuable insight into the relationships between body and emotion and how humans are emotionally influenced by spaces and things. By urging us to move beyond language-focused studies to examine embodied emotion and objects in emotional practice, Feelings Materialized is certain to inspire future work in historical emotion studies." • The German Quarterly

Of the many innovative approaches to emerge during the twenty-first century, one of the most productive has been the interdisciplinary nexus of theories and methodologies broadly defined as "the study of emotions." While this conceptual toolkit has generated significant insights, it has overwhelmingly focused on emotions as linguistic and semantic phenomena. This edited volume looks instead to the material aspects of emotion in German culture, encompassing the body, literature, photography, aesthetics, and a variety of other themes.

Beyond Posthumanism

The German Humanist Tradition and the Future of the Humanities
Alexander Mathäs

Against the background of debates about a revival of humanist values, this volume seeks to recast the question of the viability of the humanities by analyzing their long-disputed premises in German literature and philosophy. It emphasizes the importance of the humanities' original mission of establishing a universal ethics by contextualizing disciplinary knowledge and making human experiences, bodily sensations, and emotions comprehensible through literary imagination.

A History of the I.G. Farben Trial

Armament, Exploitation, Auschwitz
Stephan H. Lindner

"The trial of the managers of I.G. Farben is a legal thriller driven by a desire for justice, personal ambition, and the political realities between World War II and the Cold War. Based on an exhaustive analysis of archival material, Stephan Lindner brilliantly reconstructs the real story behind the gossip and disillusionment and shows how much justice, even in the most heinous cases, depends on context and will." • Angelika Nußberger, Former Vice-President of the European Court of Human Rights

Black Lisbon

The Making of Anticolonial Internationalism in Portugal, 1910-1940
Richard Mark Cleminson

"This manuscript makes a significant contribution to our understanding of Lisbon as a hub for discussions on Black emancipation in Europe during the first half of the 20th century. It situates Portugal within the broader context of Black and African struggles, making a vital contribution to emerging scholarly work that explores the connections between movements against colonialism and racial discrimination in Europe, Africa, and the Americas." • Marta Araújo, University of Coimbra

In Black Lisbon, Richard Cleminson traces the local and transnational intersections between peoples in Portugal and across the Portuguese African empire, in order to interrogate the development of movements based in Lisbon that resisted or sought to reconfigure colonialism.

New in Paperback*Rethinking the Age of Emancipation

Comparative and Transnational Perspectives on Gender, Family, and Religion in Italy and Germany, 1800-1918
Edited by Martin Baumeister, Philipp Lenhard, and Ruth Nattermann

"The volume should interest scholars of the nineteenth- and early-twentieth centuries, while its engaging individual chapters could easily be assigned to undergraduate or graduate students." • The English Historical Review

Rethinking the Age of Emancipation aims at a critical reassessment of the development of the two "late" nations, Italy and Germany, from a new and transnational perspective. Essays by an international and interdisciplinary group of scholars examine the discursive relationships among nationalism, war, and emancipation as well as the ambiguous roles of historical protagonists with competing loyalties.

Gendarmes, Bureaucrats, and Jews

A Documentary History of the Destruction of Hungary's Jews, Spring-Summer 1944

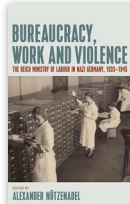

Edited by Judit Fejes Schulmann, David Alan Rich, and Judit Molnár

An illuminating chronicle of the concentration, ghettoization, and deportation of Hungarian Jews in 1944-1945, Gendarmes, Bureaucrats, and Jews presents, for the first time in English, the key primary sources from the period, documenting how this genocidal program was facilitated by both the Nazi regime and the Hungarian state.

"This documentary reader makes accessible to non-Hungarian readers [...] a well chosen set of documents that captures the events of the so-called 'last chapter' of the Holocaust: the rapid ghettoization and deportation of over 400,000 Hungarian Jews to Auschwitz Birkenau in the spring and summer of 1944." • Tim Cole, University of Bristol

Stephan Ehrig

An incisive analysis of East German cinematic, literary, and architectural case studies from the 1960s to the 1980s, Neubau Atmospheres examines the creative role the urban, built environment played in mediating the emotional and social experience of its residents, highlighting how this engagement constituted a cultural genre in its own right.

Stories Make the World

Reflections on Storytelling and the Art of the Documentary
Stephen Most

In Stories Make the World, award-winning screenwriter Stephen Most offers a captivating, refreshingly heartfelt exploration of how documentary filmmakers and other storytellers come to understand their subjects and cast light on the world through their art. Drawing on the author's decades of experience behind the scenes of television and film documentaries, this is an indispensable account of the principles and paradoxes that attend the quest to represent reality truthfully.

Ingmar Bergman Out of Focus

Film Cultures and International Reception
Edited by Jono Van Belle, Fernando Ramos Arenas, Maria Paz Peirano

An exacting re-examination of Ingmar Bergman's cultural heritage, Ingmar Bergman Out of Focus digs into the perceived "familiarity" of Bergman's films by analyzing how the Swedish director's film aesthetics simultaneously shaped modern culture and were themselves reshaped by contemporary cultural debates.

Different from the Others

German and Dutch Discourses of Queer Femininity and Female Desire, 1918 - 1940
Cyd Sturgess

Presenting for the first time a comparative and socio-cultural history of queer femininities in Germany and the Netherlands for an English-speaking audience, Different from the Others highlights this submerged history and engages queer authors and activists from the Netherlands to challenge and redress conceptualizations of queer femininity in the interwar period.

Girls Take Action

Activism Networks by, for, and with Girls and Young Women
Edited by Catherine Vanner

The repression of the rights of girls and women is continuously threatened in a wide range of global cultural contexts. Girls Take Action shines light on the myriad ways girls and young women are exercising agency in the face of injustice, considering especially the role of community and collaboration in fostering activism networks and ultimately a more transnational understanding of girlhood.

Sexscapes of Pleasure

Women, Sexuality and the Whore Stigma in Italy
Elena Zambelli

Drawing from ethnographic research, this book brings together the narratives of Italian and migrant women pole dancing for leisure, women pole and lap dancing for work, as well as women selling sex. By tracing commonalities in women's processes of subjectivation and othering across the non/sex working women divide, the book foregrounds the intersecting structures of oppression under which women negotiate selfhood.

Gentrifications

Views from Europe
Marie Chabrol, Anaïs Collet, Matthieu Giroud, Lydie Launay,
Max Rousseau and Hovig Ter Minassian

Offering an original discussion of the gentrification phenomenon in Europe, this book provides new theoretical insights into classical works on the subject. Using a thorough analysis of the diversity of the forms, places and actors of gentrification in an attempt to isolate its "DNA", the book addresses the place of social groups in cities, their competition over the appropriation of space, the infrastructure unequally offered to them by economic and political actors and the stakes of everyday social relationships.

The Social Origins of Thought

Durkheim, Mauss, and the Category Project
Edited by Johannes F. M. Schick, Mario Schmidt, and Martin Zillinger

By studying how different societies understand categories such as time and causality, the Durkheimians decentered Western epistemology. With contributions from philosophy, sociology, anthropology, media studies, and sinology, this volume illustrates the interdisciplinarity and intellectual rigor of the "category project" which did not only stir controversies among contemporary scholars but paved the way for other theories exploring how the thoughts of individuals are prefigured by society and vice versa.

"By highlighting lesser-known influences on Durkheim and Mauss, [this book] enriches our understanding of the category project and its relevance to the evolution of social thought. For those willing to engage deeply with its content, this work provides many valuable insights." • Anthropos

The Afterlives of Tamil Tigers

Fighters' Memories of War and Survival
Giacomo Mantovan

The Afterlives of Tamil Tigers explores the experience of war, defeat, and exile among former fighters—both men and women—of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE), through the testimonies of veterans now living in France. By tracing their life trajectories, she examines how these experiences have left a lasting imprint on their identities and ways of being in the world.

Punching Back

Gender, Religion and Belonging in Women-Only Kickboxing
Jasmijn Rana

In the Netherlands, girls and young women are increasingly active in women-only kickboxing. The general assumption, in the Netherlands and in western Europe more broadly, is that women's sport is a form of secular, feminist empowerment. Muslim women's participation would then exemplify the incongruence of Islam with the modern, secular nation-state. Punching Back provides a detailed ethnographic study that contests this view by showing that young Muslim women who kickbox establish agentive selves by playing with gender norms, challenging expectations, and living out their religious subjectivities.

Between Anthropology and Psychiatry

Roland Littlewood and Simon Dein

While Psychology and Anthropology share certain overlapping interests, there is no agreed schema or paradigm for this area. Rejecting both psychoanalysis and the biopsychosocial model as insufficient, this collection brings together studies on Hasidic concepts of illness, the religious origins of schizophrenia, Christian stigmata, the "third sex" in Albania, jinn possession among European immigrants, and reincarnation among the Druze. The volume argues for plural models integrating biological, psychodynamic, and sociocultural perspectives. It highlights the enduring tension between Psychiatry's naturalistic explanations and Anthropology's personalistic approach, suggesting that both offer partial yet essential insights into human experience.

"Few people are capable (or brave enough) to address anthropology, psychiatry and cultures of monotheism in the critical and sometimes controversial way in which the authors have. The volume represents three decades of exploration into a topic that otherwise sits latently under the very structures of Western society and its medical institutions. These papers should be read by any student in social sciences and medicine." • Aaron Parkhurst, University College London

The Origins of Prejudice

Dangerous Opinions and Beliefs
Eugene Anderson, Kelley Coures, Carla Guerrero Montero, Tory L. Schendel-Vyvoda, Tobias Schwörer and John Edward Terrell

The Origins of Prejudice is a short and unconventional book that shows you step-by-step both how and why all of us who are human often rely uncritically on what we believe to be true about the people, things, and events shaping our lives outside the hidden world of our bony skull. This book aims to show how we can learn from our possibly unintentional acts and self-serving misdeeds to live together in supportive, less conflicted ways.

Anthropology, Nationalism and Colonialism
Mendes Correia and the Porto School of Anthropology
Patricia Ferraz de Matos

A major contribution to the history of European anthropology, this book highlights the Porto School of Anthropology and analyses the work of its main mentor, Mendes Correia (1888-1960). It goes beyond a Portuguese focus to present a wider comparative analysis in which the colonial empire, knowledge of origins, ethnic identity and cultural practices all receive special attention. The analysis takes into account the fact that nationalism, as associated with an ethno-racial paradigm, decisively influenced discourse and scientific and political practices.

"A well-written and stimulating study about one of the central figures in the history of Portuguese anthropology... Certainly, this book can be considered one of the most important publications in history of anthropology of the last few years and will become one of the main references for the history of Portuguese anthropology." • Anthropos

Working the Fabric
Resourcefulness, Belonging and Island Life in Scotland's Harris Tweed Industry
Joana Nascimento

Trademark-protected since 1910, the famous woollen cloth known as Harris Tweed can only be produced in the Outer Hebrides of Scotland – yet it is exported to over 50 countries around the world. Examining contemporary experiences of work and life, this book is the first in-depth anthropological study of the renowned textile industry, complementing and updating existing historical and ethnographic research.

"This is an excellent book ... It is a smart and refreshing contribution to the anthropology of work and labour, showing the importance of place and place-making in the production of a global commodity. I wish more academic books were written in the same jargon-free and engaging style." • Rebecca Prentice, University of Sussex

History

Jewish Refugees in Shanghai
Experiences, Memories, Interviews, Histories
Steve Hochstadt

Between 1933 and 1942, around 20,000 refugees fled to Shanghai to escape Nazi-occupied Europe, most of them Jewish. Unable to assimilate into Chinese culture, the Jewish community spent a decade preserving their own culture and enduring harsh Japanese occupation in Shanghai, before dispersing around the world after the end of World War II. Steve Hochstadt, whose Viennese grandparents were among those who fled, tells their story by weaving together hundreds of sources and dozens of interviews into a series of compelling essays on this unique, but little-known rescue.

Techno-Cultural Rivalry

Transatlantic Competition between the United States and Germany, 1890-1930
Frank Trommler

This book explores the cultural encounters and confrontations between 1880 and the 1930s, moving beyond familiar narratives of Fordism and Taylorism to reveal technology as a dynamic cultural force. By tracing the adoption of German science in the United States, the American endeavors of conceptualizing technology in the search for a genuine American culture, and the German fascination and critique of "Americanism" in the Weimar republic, it offers new perspectives on transatlantic modernity.

The Hunted

The Holocaust through the Experiences of Twenty European Jews
Susan Welch

Told through the voices of twenty European Jews who survived the Holocaust, The Hunted presents a micro historical account of persecution and survival under Nazi rule. Drawing on diaries and memoirs, it reconstructs a multiplicity of experiences across national, social, and religious contexts, examining how individual decisions were shaped by family networks, local conditions, and shifting policies. Each chapter traces a single year in the lives of the protagonists, situating their choices within the evolving administrative and legal framework of Nazi persecution.

Film StudiesNew in Paperback*Cinema and the Environment in Eastern Europe

From Communism to Capitalism
Edited by Masha Shpolberg and Lukas Brasiskis

The annexation of Eastern Europe to the Soviet sphere after World War II dramatically reshaped popular understandings of the natural environment. With an eco-critical approach, Cinema and the Environment in Eastern Europe breaks new ground in documenting how filmmakers increasingly saw cinema as a tool to critique the social and environmental damage of large-scale projects from socialist regimes and newly forming capitalist presences.

"This collection provides a comprehensive analysis of Eastern European film culture and ecocinema, integrating them expertly to provide a deep historical and geocultural analysis of variations in ecocinematic representations and the ways these film cultures have been engaging with environmental matters. The contextualization of existing scholarship with the particularities of Eastern European political and cultural history is exciting and innovative." • Pietari Kaapa, University of Warwick
