

STUDIES IN SOCIAL ANALYSIS

GENERAL EDITOR: Martin Holbraad, University College London

By forging creative and critical engagements with cultural, political, and social processes, anthropology explores the potential of social analysis to open new paths for thinking about human phenomena.

The focus of this series is on 'analysis', understood not as a synonym of 'theory', but as the fertile meeting-ground of the empirical and the conceptual. It provides a platform for exploring anthropological approaches to social analysis in all of their variety, and in doing so seeks also to open new avenues of communication between anthropology and the humanities as well as other social sciences.

Formal submissions should be sent directly to the series editor. For more information on Berghahn's manuscript submission procedure, please visit the Info for Authors section on the Berghahn Books website.

STATES OF IMITATION

Mimetic Governmentality and Colonial Rule

Edited by Patrice Ladwig and Ricardo Roque

Late Western colonialism often relied on the practice of imitating indigenous forms of rule in order to maintain power; conversely, indigenous polities could imitate Western sociopolitical forms to their own benefit. Drawing on historical ethnographic studies of colonialism in Asia and Africa, States of Imitation examines how the colonial state attempted to administer, control, and integrate its indigenous subjects through mimetic governmentality, as well the ways indigenous states adopted these imitative practices to establish reciprocal ties with, or to resist the presence of, the colonial state.

MULTIPLE NATURE-CULTURES, DIVERSE ANTHROPOLOGIES

Edited by Casper Bruun Jensen and Atsuro Morita

Over time, the role of nature in anthropology has evolved from being a mere backdrop for social and cultural diversity to being viewed as an integral part of the ontological entanglement of human and nonhuman agents. This transformation of the role of nature offers important insight into the relationships between diverse anthropological traditions.

HIERARCHY AND VALUEComparative Perspectives on Moral Order

Edited by Jason Hickel and Naomi Haynes

Why do some communities see hierarchy as desirable? In this book, leading anthropologists draw on insightful ethnographic case studies from around the world to address these trends. Together, they develop a theory of hierarchy that treats it both as a relational form and a framework for organizing ideas about the social good.

AFFECTIVE STATESEntanglements, Suspensions, Suspensions

Edited by Mateusz Laszczkowski and Madeleine Reeves

Covering a wide spectrum of topics and ethnographic contexts—from engineering in the Andes to household rituals in rural China, from South African land restitution to migrant living in Moscow, and from elections in El Salvador to online and offline surveillance among political refugees from Uzbekistan and Eritrea—the chapters in this volume interrogate this 'affective turn' through the lens of fine-grained ethnographies of the state.
