Series Editor: Aleksandar Bošković, University of Belgrade

Published in Association with the European Association of Social-Anthropologists (EASA)

Editorial Board: Knut Nustad, University of Oslo, Sian Lazar, University of Cambridge,
Susana Narotzky, University of Barcelona, Michal Buchowski, University of Poznań,
Manos Spyridakis, University of the Peloponnese, Birgit Muller, EHESS, LAIOS-IIAC CNRS, Paris

Social anthropology in Europe is growing, and the variety of work being done is expanding. This series is intended to present the best of the work produced by members of the EASA, both in monographs and in edited collections. The studies in this series describe societies, processes and institutions around the world and are intended for both scholarly and student readerships.

FORTHCOMING

Ethnographies of Power

A Political Anthropology of Energy

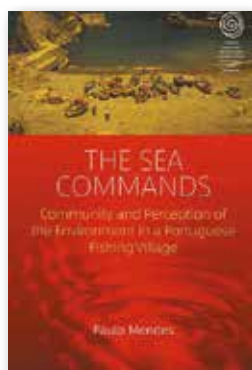

Edited by Tristan Loloum, Simone Abram and Nathalie Ortar

"The strengths of the collection lie primarily in the papers' rich ethnographic examination of the everyday politics engendered by state-initiated and/or directed energy flows and extractions – on existing, typically rural practices with their own temporality and logics." · Thomas F. Love, Linfield College

Energetic infrastructures are crucial to political organization. They shape the contours of states and international bodies, as well as corporations and communities, framing their material existence and their fears and idealisations of the future. Ethnographies of Power brings together ethnographic studies of contemporary entanglements of energy and political power.

The Sea Commands

Community and Perception of the Environment in a Portuguese Fishing Village

Paulo Mendes

"A work with a remarkable mastery of writing, exemplar of a very fine and consistent ethnography." · Paula Godinho, University of Lisbon

Azenha do Mar is a fishing community on the southwest coast of Portugal. It came into existence around forty years ago, as an outcome of the abandonment of work in the fields and of propitious ecological conditions. This book looks at the migration processes since the founding of the community and how they relate to the social inequalities towards property and labour which prevail today.

Embodying Borders

Migrants' Right to Health, Universal Rights and Local Policies

Edited by Laura Ferrero, Ana Cristina Vargas and Chiara Quagliariello

Afterword by Daniela DeBono

"Provides a comparative and descriptive assessment of the many different ways in which migration policies hinder migrants access to health care in the USA and at the southern border of Europe." · Barbara Sorgoni, University of Turin

Based on extensive field research, the essays in this volume illuminate the experiences of migrants from their own point of view, providing a critical understanding of the complex social reality in which each experience is grounded.

Can Academics Change the World?

An Israeli Anthropologist's Testimony on the Rise and Fall of a Protest Movement on Campus

Moshe Shokeid

"...a contribution to the understanding of contemporary Israeli society and an example of academic, not least anthropological, engagement with public affairs" · Ulf Hannerz, University of Stockholm

Moshe Shokeid narrates his experiences as a member of AD KAN (NO MORE), a protest movement of Israeli academics at Tel Aviv University, who fought against the Israeli occupation of Palestinian territories, founded during the first Palestinian intifada/uprising (1987-1993).

Institutionalised Dreams

The Art of Managing Foreign Aid

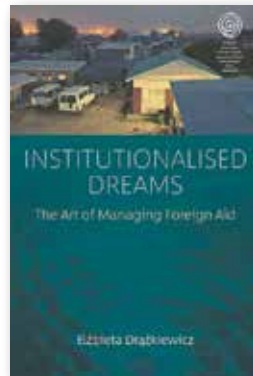

Elżbieta Drażkiewicz

"This case study of Poland makes a valuable contribution to the ongoing debates about the concept of development by showing the role of international agencies, aid budgeting and lobbying." · Suzana Ignjatović, University of Belgrade

How do states become donors? Why do individuals decide to share their wealth with others through foreign aid? Using examples from Poland, Elżbieta Drażkiewicz demonstrates how the concept of foreign aid requires the establishment of a specific moral economy which links national ideologies and local cultures of charitable giving with broader ideas about the global political economy.

Non-Humans in Amerindian South America

Ethnographies of Indigenous Cosmologies, Rituals and Songs

Edited by Juan Javier Rivera Andía

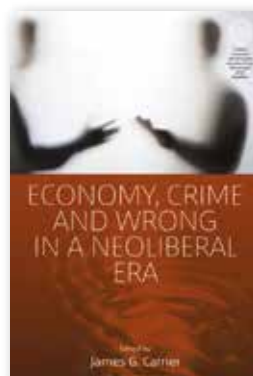

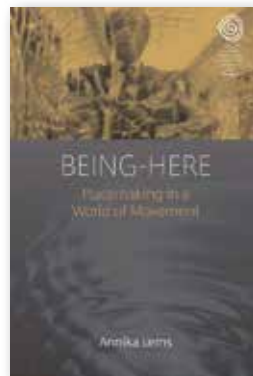

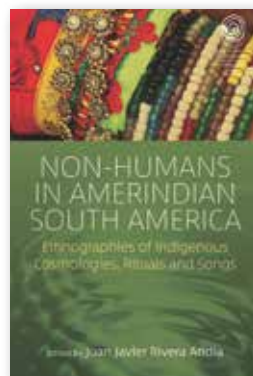

"This exciting collection of essays by a wonderful group of authors, anchored by an extensive theoretical introduction, engages with some of the most heatedly debated subjects of South American ethnography today." · Anthony Seeger, UCLA

"This book brings together empirically rich, ethnographically grounded case studies of ritual and musical interactions with non-humans from lowland and highland regions of the continent. This wealth of new material gives Rivera Andía ample justification for a thorough reappraisal of current debates on nonhumans and animism. The book will remain an essential reference for some time to come." · Marc Brightman, University College London

Drawing on fieldwork from diverse Amerindian societies, and presenting ethnographies of non-human entities emerging in ritual, oral tradition, cosmology, shamanism and music, this book offers new insights into the indigenous constitutions of humanity, personhood, and environment characteristic of the South American highlands and lowlands.

Being-Here

Placemaking in a World of Movement

Annika Lems

"As an essay in phenomenological anthropology, this is groundbreaking work. As an empirically-grounded contribution to an existential anthropology of minor modes of being, it may be second to none." · Michael D. Jackson, Harvard University

By exploring the lifeworlds of two middle-aged Somalis living in Melbourne, Australia, Being-Here sheds light on the existential dynamics of being-in-place.

Economy, Crime, and Wrong in a Neoliberal Era

Edited by James G. Carrier

"Truly outstanding in every respect... [the volume] shows that anthropologists can productively complicate our view of contemporary issues whilst simultaneously advancing our understanding of what is going on in our world in a very revealing and ethnographically grounded way."

· John Gledhill, University of Manchester

This volume examines the relationship between corporate and economic wrong-doing and the neoliberal policies and practices that have been influential in Western societies since around 1980, considering whether neoliberalism has affected the likelihood that people and firms will act in ways that many would consider wrong – and even fragmented our very ideas of economic right and wrong.

Experimental Collaborations

Ethnography through Fieldwork Devices

Edited by Adolfo Estalella and Tomás Sánchez Criado

Foreword by George E. Marcus

Afterword by Sarah Pink

"It will be of relevance to all practicing anthropologists, regardless of their subdiscipline, area of geographical interest, or current career position." · David O'Kane, Max Planck Institute for Social Anthropology, Halle/Saale, Germany

Grounded in a series of diverse ethnographic projects in Africa, America and Europe, Experimental Collaborations attempts to expand our ethnographic repertoire of fieldwork devices. The titular concept signals a descriptive account of certain forms of ethnographic engagement, and a research and pedagogic program to intervene in current forms of ethnographic practice and learning.

Back to the Postindustrial Future

An Ethnography of Germany's Fastest-Shrinking City

Felix Ringel

"Accessible and stimulating... There is little that I know of in our current literature that describes a present-moment European urban community in this ethnographic detail."

· Jane Guyer, Johns Hopkins University

Back to the Postindustrial Future is the first comprehensive ethnography of the future, approaching Hoyerswerda, Germany's fastest shrinking city, not from the perspective of its past, but persistently from that of its future.

Messy Europe

Crisis, Race, and Nation-State in a Postcolonial World

Edited by Kristín Loftsdóttir, Andrea L. Smith, and Brigitte Hipfl

Managing Ambiguity

How Clientelism, Citizenship, and Power Shape Personhood in Bosnia and Herzegovina

Čarna Brković

"Brković's book is one of those that adds another piece to the puzzle that recent anthropological research on Bosnia-Herzegovina is creating... But here let me add that Managing Ambiguity is an essential piece to the puzzle since it deals with the topic not easy to research, to understand, and to present." · Anthropology Notebooks

Why do people turn to personal connections to get things done? Challenging widespread views of favors as means of survival in transitioning contexts, this volume demonstrates that these contemporary globalized forms of flexible governance are not contradictory to one another, but often mutually constitutive.

The Good Holiday

Development, Tourism and the Politics of Benevolence in Mozambique

João Afonso Baptista

"This book makes an important contribution to critical studies of tourism, and the growing corpus on Mozambican Studies as well as – and this is perhaps its most important contribution – adding significantly to analyses of consumerism and its ethical, economic and political dimensions." · Bjørn Enge Bertelsen, University of Bergen

Drawing on ethnographic research in the village of Canhane, host to the first community tourism project in Mozambique, this volume explores the influence of development and tourism in relation to ethics, and non-state governance in contemporary life.

Moving Places

Relations, Return and Belonging

Edited by Nataša Gregorič Bon and Jaka Repič

"This is a well conceived and well executed volume that addresses an important and timely constellation of themes regarding movement, (im)mobilities, dislocations, reorientations, return, and memory in a range of compelling sociocultural contexts." · Peter Kirby, University of Oxford

Centering on "moving places" – places with locations that are not fixed, but relative – this book draws together contributions from Europe, Latin America, Asia, and Africa, exploring practices and experiences of movement, non-movement, and place-making.

World Heritage on the Ground

Ethnographic Perspectives

Edited by Christoph Brumann and David Berliner

"...this excellent book provides thoughtful critiques of UNESCO, state organizations, developers, and the tourist bureaus that translate and reconfigure UNESCO policies in globalizing ways." · Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute (JRAI)

The UNESCO World Heritage Convention of 1972 is a key arena for contemporary cultural and natural conservation. In case studies from across the globe, anthropologists with situated expertise in specific World Heritage sites explore the consequences of the World Heritage framework and the global spread of this heritage regime.

Figuration Work

Student Participation, Democracy and University Reform in a Global Knowledge Economy

Gritt B. Nielsen

"Figuration Work encourages those committed to researching university cultures to suggest new envisioned futures and make some seductive intellectual stabs at the 'not-yet-thought-of university'." · Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute

What should the role of students be in shaping their education, their university, and the wider society? This book seeks to answer these questions following recent international educational reforms.

Contemporary Pagan and Native Faith Movements in Europe

Colonialist and Nationalist Impulses

Edited by Kathryn Rountree

"Students and scholars of the sociology or anthropology of religion and pagan studies will no doubt find this book a useful tool, as it is one of the first complete volumes to explore paganisms in Europe and the complexities and influences of global and local politics, culture, and social change on these emerging movements." · Anthropos

Contributors to this volume draw on ethnographic cases within Europe to explore the interplay of nationalism and transnationalism within these recently emerging and diverse groups.

Flexible Capitalism

Exchange and Ambiguity at Work

Edited by Jens Kjaerulff

Afterword by Keir Martin

"This volume comprises a series of insightful essays that apply existing debates in anthropology . . . to new empirical contexts of work under flexible capitalism."

· Geert De Neve, University of Sussex

Introducing anthropological exchange theory to a wider readership, this volume explores sociality in work environments marked by the kind of structural changes that have come to define contemporary "flexible" capitalism.

Being a State and States of Being in Highland Georgia

Florian Mühlfried

"This is essential reading for scholars of the Caucasus as well as those interested in Soviet and post-Soviet citizenship. Mühlfried's discussion of religiosity as forming a "spiritual border" entwined with the state is compelling and worth pursuing in future studies." · American Ethnologist

Taking a fresh look at the Georgian highlands allows the author to consider perennial questions of citizenship, belonging, and mobility in a context that has otherwise been known only for its folkloric dimensions.

Being Human, Being Migrant

Senses of Self and Well-Being

Edited by Anne Sigfrid Grønseth

Epilogue by Nigel Rapport

"This is a comprehensive collection – addressing mind and body. The ethnography is of a very high quality, and the collection is beautifully edited by Sigfrid Grønseth..."

· Journal of Population Ageing

Focusing on memories, nostalgia, the here-and-now social experiences of daily living, and the hopes and dreams for the future, the volume demonstrates how all interact in migrants' and refugees' experience of identity and quest for well-being.

Peripheral Vision

Politics, Technology, and Surveillance

Catarina Frois

"This is a valuable contribution to the field of surveillance studies, in that it broadens the perspective of many aspects of research on surveillance through political anthropology." · Nils Zurawski, Hamburg University

In Portugal between 2005 and 2010, "modernization through technology" was the major political motto used to develop and improve the country's peripheral and backward condition. This study reflects on one of the resulting, specific aspects of this trend—the implementation of public video surveillance.
