Experiencing Archaeology A Laboratory Manual of Classroom Activities, Demonstrations, and Minilabs for Introductory Archaeology

Lara Homsey-Messer, Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Tracy Michaud, University of Southern Maine, Angela Lockard Reed, Grand Valley State University and Victoria Bobo, Arapahoe Community College in Littleton

Today, many general-education archaeology courses are large, lecture-style class formats that present a challenge to providing students, particularly non-majors, with opportunities to learn experientially. This laboratory-style manual compiles a wide variety of uniquely designed, hands-on classroom activities to acquaint advanced high school and introductory college students to the field of archaeology. Ranging in length from five to thirty minutes, activities created by archaeologists are designed to break up traditional classroom lecture, engage students of all learning styles, and easily integrate into large classes and/or short class periods that do not easily accommodate traditional laboratory work.

NEW SERIES

An Enchantment of Digital Archaeology Raising the Dead with Agent Based Models, Archaeogaming, and Artificial Intelligence

Shawn Graham, Carleton University

The use of computation in archaeology is a kind of magic, a way of heightening the archaeological imagination. Agent-based modelling allows archaeologists to test the 'just-so' stories they tell about the past. It requires a formalization of the story so that it can be represented as a simulation; researchers are then able to explore the unintended consequences or emergent outcomes of stories about the past. Agent based models are one end of a spectrum that ends with video games. This volume explores this spectrum in the context of Roman archaeology, addressing the strengths, weaknesses, and opportunities of a formalized approach to computation and archaeogaming.

Cultural Resource Management

A Collaborative Primer for Archaeologists

Thomas F. King, International Group for Historic Aircraft Recovery's (TIGHAR's)

"It is very well written, effectively organized, and spot-on: an insider's succinct explication and critique of how 21st century CRM works, aimed at up and coming and journeyman archaeologists."

• Stephen L. Black, Texas State University

Stressing the interdisciplinary, public-policy oriented character of Cultural Resource Management (CRM), which is not merely "applied archaeology," this short, relatively uncomplicated introduction is aimed at emerging archaeologists. Drawing on fifty-plus years' experience, and augmented by the advice of fourteen collaborators, Cultural Resource Management explains what "CRM archaeologists" do, and explores the public policy, ethical, and pragmatic implications of doing it for a living.

Born a Slave, Died a Pioneer

Nathan Harrison and the Historical Archaeology of Legend

Seth Mallio, University History Curator

"This is a thoughtful, well-written manuscript addressing a multitude of questions relevant to historical archaeologists as well as to others interested in constructions of the past."

· Julia A. King, St. Mary's College of Maryland

Few people in the history of the United States embody ideals of the American Dream more than Nathan Harrison.

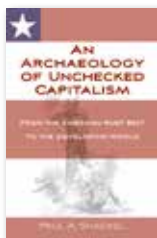

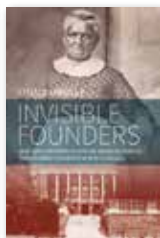

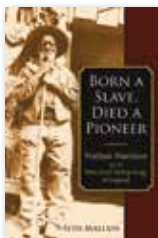

His is a story with prominent themes of overcoming staggering obstacles, forging something-from-nothing, and evincing gritty perseverance. This book uses spectacular recent discoveries from the Nathan Harrison cabin site to offer new insights and perspectives into this most American biography.

House of the Waterlily A Novel of the Ancient Maya World

Kelli Carmean, Eastern Kentucky University

"House of the Waterlily is an excellent introduction into the world of the Classic Period Maya in large part because Carmean is a fine storyteller who weaves her narrative as beautifully as a 'fine-spun' huipil. This book would be an excellent addition to the course reading list for undergraduate students who are studying the ancient Maya." · Scott Simmons, University of North Carolina, Wilmington

Set in the Maya civilization's Late Classic Period House of the Waterlily is a historical novel centered on Lady Winik, a young Maya royal. Through tribulations that mirror the political calamities of the Late Classic world, Winik's personal story immerses the reader not only in her daily life, but also in the difficult decisions Maya men and women must have faced as they tried to navigate a rapidly changing world. Kelli Carmean's novel brings to life a people and an era remote from our own, yet recognizably human all the same.

Mixed Harvest Stories from the Human Past

Rob Swigart

"Mixed Harvest is an unexpected take on human origins and early human societies, blending deftly written short stories with brief nonfiction segments... Readers will leave with a strong emotional grounding in the anthropological and archaeological record, and a large number of informational and thematic touchpoints for understanding this history." · Joey Eschrich, Arizona State University

In unforgettable stories of the human journey, a combination of storytelling and dialogue underscore an excavation into the deep past of human development and its consequences. Through a first encounter between a Neanderthal woman and the Modern Human she called Traveler, to the emergence and destruction of the world's first cities, Mixed Harvest tells the tale of the Sedentary Divide, the most significant event since modern humans emerged. Rob Swigart's latest work humanizes the rapid transition to agriculture and pastoralism with a grounding in the archaeological record.

Archaeogaming An Introduction to Archaeology in and of Video Games

Andrew Reinhard, American Numismatic Society

"Although the topics and references included in the text are more closely aligned to the field of archaeology than to game studies, the author's clarity of style makes it accessible to all readers, with or without an archaeological background. Moreover, his personal anecdotes and gameplay experiences with different game titles, from which his ideas often develop, make it very enjoyable reading." • Antiquity

Video games exemplify contemporary material objects, resources, and spaces that people use to define their culture. Video games also serve as archaeological sites in the traditional sense as a place, in which evidence of past activity is preserved and has been, or may be, investigated using the discipline of archaeology, and which represents a part of the archaeological record. This book serves as a general introduction to "archaeogaming"; it describes the intersection of archaeology and video games and applies archaeological method and theory into understanding game-spaces as both site and artifact.

The Southeast Asia Connection Trade and Politics in the Eurasian World Economy, 500 BC–AD 500

Sing C. Chew, Helmholtz Centre for Environmental Research–UFZ, Leipzig

The contribution of Southeast Asia to the world economy (during the late prehistoric and early historic periods) has not received much attention. It has often been viewed as a region of peripheral entrepôts, especially in the early centuries of the current era. Recent archaeological evidence revealed the existence of established and productive polities in Southeast Asia in the early parts of the historic period and earlier. This book recalibrates these interactions of Southeast Asia with other parts of the world economy, and gives the region its due instead of treating it as little more than of marginal interest.

Blurring Timescapes, Subverting Erasure Remembering Ghosts on the Margins of History

Edited by Sarah Surface-Evans, Central Michigan University, Amanda E. Garrison, Central Michigan University and Kisha Supernant, Exploring Métis Identity Through Archaeology (EMITA) Project

"This book is an exciting and invigorating experience for the reader. The reader is asked to engage actively with stories that stand outside typical conventions of scholarly narratives, and the quality of the writing makes that an easy task... Blurring ideas of time and space allow other critical aspects of the tangible and intangible to come into sharp focus, and gently provoke new ways of thinking and knowing." - Jane Baxter, DePaul University

What happens when we blur time and allow ourselves to haunt or to become haunted by ghosts of the past? Drawing on archaeological, historical, and ethnographic data, Blurring Timescapes, Subverting Erasure demonstrates the value of conceiving of ghosts not just as metaphors, but as mechanisms for making the past more concrete and allowing the negative specters of enduring historical legacies, such as colonialism and capitalism, to be exorcised.

Playing with the Past

Exploring Values in Heritage Practice

Kate Clark

Heritage is all around us, not just in monuments and museums, but in places that matter, in the countryside and in collections and stories. It touches all of us. How do we decide what to preserve? How do we make the case for heritage when there are so many other priorities? Playing with the Past is the first ever action-learning book about heritage. Over eighty creative activities and games encompass the basics of heritage practice, from management and decisionmaking to community engagement and leadership. Although designed to 'train the trainers', the activities in the book are relevant to anyone involved in caring for heritage.

Preservation and Place Historic Preservation by and of LGBTQ Communities in the United States

Edited by Katherine Crawford-Lackey, Middle Tennessee State University and Megan E. Springate, National Park Service Cultural Resources Office of Interpretation and Education

"Preservation and Place is a strong and much needed volume that brings together the scholarly, preservationist, architectural, and activist voices." - Jack Giesecking, University of Kentucky

Significant historic and archaeological sites affiliated with two-spirit, lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer history in the United States are examined in this unique volume. The importance of the preservation process in documenting and interpreting the lives and experiences of queer Americans is emphasized. The book features chapters on archaeology and interpretation, as well as several case studies focusing on queer preservation projects. The accessible text and associated activities create an interactive and collaborative process that encourages readers to apply the material in a hands-on setting.
