

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
Ger Duijzings and Tauri Tuvikene
Chapter 1. Seven Imaginary Images of the Transition of GDR Streets, 1989–1995	30
Kurt Möser
Chapter 2. Liberated or Lawless? Social Life on Prishtina's Postwar Streets	46
Rita Gagic and Ger Duijzings
Chapter 3. 'Changing Everything Fast'? Young Men in the Streets of Tbilisi	70
Costanza Curro
Chapter 4. Coproducing the Car and the Stratified Street: Automobility and Space in Russia	89
Jeremy Morris
Chapter 5. Bucharest's Centura : Encircling a City in Transformation	106
Ger Duijzings
Chapter 6. Pedestrianizing Moscow: Disparities between the Centre and the Inner Periphery	136
Sabina Maslova and Tauri Tuvikene
Chapter 7. Between Non-Place and Public Space: Life at a Postsocialist (Trolley)Bus Stop	162
Andrei Vazyanau

Chapter 8. Where the Streets Have No Name: Toponymic Changes, Wayfinding and Tashkent's System of Orientry Nikolaos Olma	186
Chapter 9. No Future without a Motorway Exit: Roadside Communities in Postsocialist Poland – the Case of Torzym Agata Stanisz	205
Conclusion Ger Duijzings and Tauri Tuvikene	223
Postscript 1. No Alternative to the Car; or: What Remained of Socialism after 1989/91? Luminita Gatejel	229
Postscript 2. Periodization, Postsocialism and the Directionally Challenged Joshua Hotaka Roth	233
Postscript 3. 'Where Is the Postsocialism Here?' Peter Norton	238
Index	245