

CONTENTS

|                                                                                                                                                       |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| List of Figures                                                                                                                                       | vii |
| Introduction. Reflections on the “New Dementia”Annette Leibing and Silke Schicktanz                                                        | 1   |
| PART I. The Discursive and Social Practices of Dementia Prevention                                                                             |     |
| 1. A Window to Act? Revisiting the Conceptual Foundationsof Alzheimer’s Disease in Dementia PreventionLara Keuck                       | 19  |
| 2. The Vascularization of Alzheimer’s Disease: Prevention in“Glocal” Geriatric CareAnnette Leibing                                     | 40  |
| 3. If Dementia Prevention Is the Answer, What Was the Question?Observations from the German Alzheimer’s Disease DebateSilke Schicktanz | 65  |
| 4. Dementia Prevention: Another Expansion of thePreventive HorizonMatthias Leanza                                                      | 92  |
| 5. Mind’s Frailty: Elements of a “Geriatric Logic” in the ClinicalDiscourse about Dementia PreventionAlessandro Blasimme               | 110 |
| PART II. From the Prediction and Early Detection to thePrevention of Dementia                                                             |     |
| 6. Revisiting MCI: On Classificatory DriftTiago Moreira                                                                                    | 131 |

|                                                                                                                                                                                          |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 7. The Preventive Uncertainty of Mild Cognitive Impairment (MCI): The Experts, the Market, and the Subjects of DiagnosisStephen Katz, Kevin R. Peters, and Peri J. Ballantyne | 151 |
| PART III. Conceptual Premises and Normative Claims of Prevention                                                                                                                  |     |
| 8. Staging Prevention, Arresting Progress: Chronic Disease Prevention and the Lifestyle FrameKirsten Bell                                                                     | 175 |
| 9. Responsibilization of Aging? An Ethical Analysis of the Moral Economy of PreventionMark Schweda and Larissa Pfaller                                                        | 192 |
| 10. Governing through Prevention: Lifestyle and the Health Field ConceptThomas Foth                                                                                           | 214 |
| Afterword. Looking ForwardPeter J. Whitehouse and Daniel R. George                                                                                                            | 242 |
| Index                                                                                                                                                                                    | 251 |