

Contents

List of Figures	vii
Preface. From Northern Lights to Fluorescent Lights	viii
Acknowledgments	xiv
Introduction. Arctic Late Industrialism: Extracting Value through Abstraction Arthur Mason	1
Chapter 1. To Melt Away: Abstractive Sensations in Ice Cymene Howe	27
Chapter 2. The Biggest, the Best, the Most, the Last: Creating Valuable and Vulnerable Resources in Coastal Alaska Danielle Dinovelli-Lang and Karen Hébert	45
Chapter 3. Timescaping the Arctic with Real-Time Data: Challenges for Fishing and Oil Interests Vidar Hepsø and Elena Parmiggiani	65
Chapter 4. Wild Lands, Remote Edges: Formations and Abstractions in Greenland’s Resource Zones Mark Nuttall	83
Chapter 5. Forging Off-World Frontiers: Chinese Steel and Arctic Iron Mia M. Bennett	108

Chapter 6. Constructing and Contesting Temporalities in the Mackenzie Gas Project Carly Dokis	133
Chapter 7. Material Unconscious of the Earth: Extractive Ontology and the Invisible War in Siberia Oxana Timofeeva	154
Chapter 8. Representation without Resemblance: Graphical Expression in Hydrocarbon Industry Arthur Mason	166
Afterword. Arctic Abstractions Michael J. Watts	187
Index	209