

CONTENTS

List of Figures and Tables	vii
Acknowledgments	viii
Introduction	1
	Mark Edward Ruff and Thomas Großbölting
Chapter 1 The Kulturkampf and Catholic Identity	26
	Jeffrey T. Zalar
Chapter 2 “Time to Close Ranks”: The Catholic Kulturfront during the Weimar Republic	51
	Klaus Große Kracht
Chapter 3 The Revolution of 1918/19: A Traumatic Experience for German Protestantism	75
	Benedikt Brunner
Chapter 4 The Confessional Divide in Voting Behavior	101
	Jürgen Falter
Chapter 5 The Fascist Origins of German Ecumenism	125
	James Chappell
Chapter 6 Conversion as a Confessional Irritant: Examples from the Third Reich	145
	Benjamin Ziemann

Chapter 7	Imperfect Interconfessionalism: Women, Gender, and Sexuality in Early Christian Democracy Maria Mitchell	170
Chapter 8	Importing Controversy: The Martin Luther Film of 1953 and Confessional Tensions Mark Edward Ruff	194
Chapter 9	In the Presence of Absence: Transformations of the Confessional Divide in West Germany after the Holocaust Brandon Bloch	216
Chapter 10	A Tense Triangle: The Protestant Church, the Catholic Church, and the SED State Claudia Lepp	242
Chapter 11	A Minority between Confession and Politics: Catholicism in the Soviet Zone of Occupation and the GDR (1945–90) Christoph Kösters	271
Chapter 12	The Churches and Changes in Missionary Work: Biconfessionalism and Developmental Aid to the “Third World” since the 1960s Florian Bock	300
Chapter 13	Deconfessionalization after 1945: Protestants and Catholics, Jews and Muslims as Actors within the Religious Sphere of the Federal Republic of Germany Thomas Großbölting	324
Conclusion	Closing Reflections Mark Edward Ruff and Thomas Großbölting	347
Index		357